Class of '63 Reunion

Many of the members of the Class of '63 returned to Madoc this weekend to renew old acquaintances and visit their old haunts. Although the turnout was not what the organizers were hoping for, the reunion could be termed nothing but a success. They thought that about two hundred and fifty people did attend and those that were able to return represented a good cross-section of the students who attended CHSS in 1963.

Some of those who attended were Murray Binch, Max DeButte, Dwight Binch, Doug (Sam) Rollins, Ron Stewart, Larry Griffin, Ross and Barbara Bailey and the former Leslie Brintnell. These were only a few of the better known students from that year, but many of the teachers also attended. Dave Buttle, John Butler, Jim and Mary Cox, Jean O'Riordan, Claire Henderson, Ruth Hudson, George Super and Wayne Lindsay were all in attendance at many of the functions held over the weekend. Garnet Holmes, who was one of the organizers of the reunion, said that everyone was basically the same although they may have changed somewhat physically. Beards, mustaches, receding hairlines and fuller waistlines were just a few of the changes that could be noticed in the appearances of these people, but the personalities remained the same. Those who were generally quiet when going to school were the same; those who were considered characters in school didn't disappoint anyone this weekend.

Friday night and Saturday saw the arrival of these weekend visitors and they spent most of the day registering or playing ball at the diamond or just visiting with their old friends. Saturday night was when the weekend really started to get under way. A dance was held with John Noble supplying the music and everyone really enjoyed themselves. The old Don Juans still had the power to make many of the women's hearts flutter while the women were like bottles of old wine; they had improved with age and maturity. At 11:30, Dixie Lee arrived with food for everyone which they served as well as cleaning up afterwards. The dancing ended at about 2:00 a.m. but people were reluctant to stop talking and the party didn't break up until well into the morning.

On Saturday, the big event was a family picnic at the Madoc Township School. Games were held to entertain the children and the parents participated in a mixed ball game. After seeing all of the children at the picnic, one former student was heard to remark, "It's too bad that I didn't know that we were going to be so prolific when I was younger."

On Sunday, everyone had to start thinking of returning to their jobs and families but it was arranged that those who had to leave would stop in at the Kiwanis centre to say goodbye. Everyone expressed regret at having to leave but they did suggest that they not wait ten years before they did it again. It was decided that the next reunion of the Class of '63 would be held in five years, so everyone was able to leave knowing that the old friendships would be renewed again in five years, if not sooner.

I AM Unity Day

Unity Day at the Pearson Peace Park drew a large and varied crowd on Saturday and everyone enjoyed the music supplied by the nine piece band which was made up of I AM students. The weather was ideal for their day of celebration.

I AM Unity Day, although successful, was not what the organizers were expecting. Many of the displays and people who had committed themselves to attend failed to make an appearance for some reason or another. This may have meant that there was less to see but it did not prevent those who did attend from enjoying themselves. A nine piece band and the hospitality of the hosts saved the day and made it thoroughly enjoyable.

The crowd that did appear was a good mixture of young and old and by the end of the day, everyone expressed their appreciation for the entertainment and generally very relaxing day. An unusual point about the crowd in attendance was that it was almost 50% French. I AM has many French members so that their Unity Day truly did unite French and English Canadians with a bilingual program consisting of skits and songs with a few jokes thrown in for good measure.

Awards also were given out by I AM and they included local people such as Ron Vastokas for his work around the nuclear dump site controversy in Madoc plus other such noteables as Pierre Trudeau and Peter Truman of the Global Television Network.

I AM will be holding another day such as this on the first weekend in August and they invite all of those in the local area to attend. Many people have been wondering what I AM is all about and this is your chance to go and find out for yourself.

Man of the Year Peace Award

Former United Nations Ambassador George Ignatieff, Provost of Trinity College in the University of Toronto was selected as this year's winner of the annual Man of the Year Peace Award granted by the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park Committee to the Canadian citizen who in the previous years has made the most outstanding contribution to world peace and/or Canadian unity. The award will be presented to Mr. Ignatieff at the 12th annual Veteran's Memorial Service at St. John's United Church, Tweed, Ontario on July 15th at 3 p.m.

Previous award winners have been Mr. Robert Kohaly, A.C., Dominion President of the Royal Canadian Legion, Judge J.C. Anderson, Pierre Juneau, Chairman of the Canadian Radio and Television Commission, Honourable John Robarts, Former Premier of Ontario, Stanley Knowles, M.P., Pierre Berton, Rt. Hon. Jules Leger, Governor General, Arnold Smith, Former Secretary General of the Commonwealth Nations. Last year's winner was Jean Drapeau.

The Nominees are selected by the editors of Canada's leading newspapers and Maclean's.

Dr. Ignatieff was nominated by Mr. Roger Lemelin, Editor, La Presse. The award was given to Mr. Ignatieff for his many contributions to peace since he joined the Department of External Affairs in 1940, and as Provost of Trinity College as an aid to Canadian unity. Dr. Ignatieff is a Rhodes Scholar and was named a Companion of the order of Canada in 1973.

Official Opening of O'Hara House

Madoc Review New Office Hours

Monday 8:30-4:30

Tuesday to Friday 9:00 to 5:00

The official opening of O'Hara House, which was held at the Hazzard's United Church, returned the oldest church in the area to its former glory for a short time at least. This church, which has stood alone and quiet so much in the past eleven years, once again was filled to near capacity and rang with the old time hymns that were so familiar a short time ago.

Mr. Joseph Price and Mr. Arnold

Creaser held the service and both commented on how happy they were to participate in a service of this kind. Mr. Price presently preaches in Kingston and he remembered attending the Hazzard's church when his father preached there. He remarked that he would always remember the chicken dinners that the people of this area had served and that this memory of how these people treated their ministers may have contributed to the fact that he became a minister. Mr. Arnold Creaser is the minister at the Queensboro United Church.

Church Regains Former Glory

For his sermon, Mr. Price felt that an old sermon was appropriate, so he used a sermon that John Wesley preached on the 18th of July, 1738. He felt that John Wesley was a master of making religion simple so that the everyday people of that time could understand. Mr. Price also expressed great delight at seeing a book, Pilgrimage of Faith, published about the old churches in the area. The book was co-authored by Alma Moorcroft, Blanche Sanford and Alma Blackburn and these ladies were in attendance at the service.

Some fifty pages of this book were dedicated to the Hazzard's church.

Also participating in the service were the Trentones Quartet featuring Boyd and Monte Moorcroft, who also attended this church when they were younger. The Trentones also sang the old hymns of the times and they were honored to be asked to sing in a church that was so rich in history.

This service attracted people from near and far and Mr. and Mrs. Tory from Michigan, who are direct descendants of the Hazzard family that founded the church, were in the congregation. The church is now one hundred and twenty-one years old.

Rev. Arnold Creaser and Rev. Joseph Price [right] meet the people who attended the O'Hara House official opening at the Hazzard's United Church on Sunday. The church is one hundred and twenty-one years old and has been closed since 1967.

Devolin Family Reunion

About one hundred members of the Devolin family gathered at the O'Hara Mill on Sunday, June 25 for a family picnic. After lunch at one o'clock, a business meeting was held and conveners were elected for next year's picnic. Sharon Coens, Alice Derry, and Lana Reid will look after games and prizes, Margaret Devolin will make arrangements for the park and Kathleen Moorcroft will send out the notices.

Races were held for the children under five with each participant receiving a prize. The ball throw for children aged 6 to 9 was won by Greg Coens, Marmora and April Broadworth, Oshawa. The ball throw for children ages 9 to 12 was won by Karrie Broadworth, Oshawa. 1st: Kathy Broad-worth, Oshawa - 2nd: Laura Devolin, Madoc - 3rd: Sandy Devolin, Belleville - 4th.

Prize for the one coming the greatest distance was won by Gertrude Devolin, North Bay. The youngest person present was Kate Reid, 9 months old; George Moorcroft, Madoc was the oldest man present and Ivah Philip, Stirling was the oldest woman present. The family sang Happy Anniversary to You for Mr. and Mrs. George Moorcroft who were celebrating their 55th wedding anniversary.

Next year the family reunion and picnic will be held at Glen Allen Park, Marmora on Sunday, June 24. Lunch will begin at one o'clock.

Senior Citizen's Club 473

The Sr. Citizens Club 473 met June 28th at 2 o'clock in the church hall with 54 members present. The meeting opened by singing O Canada with Mrs. Donly at the piano, followed with "The Lord's Prayer" in unison.

A poem was read "This is my Duty" for Canada week by Jennie Broadworth. Miss Mary Taylor read the minutes, and Mrs. Irene Lake read the correspondence. A card of thanks was received from Mrs. Dora Roushorne who is a patient at self-care in Bel'ville; a thank you card was received from Billie Bandy who has returned from hospital. An invitation has been received from Tweed Sr. Citizens Club to attend a Tea July 26th; an invitation was received from Bancroft Sr. Citizens Home July 6th to a bazaar. We are also invited to the Anglican Parish Hall July 11 and 12th.

There will be no Club meeting until Sept. 6th but there will be a corn roast in August when the corn is ready. The door prize was won by Rita Allore. Mel Johnson showed interesting pictures of trips taken to the Thousand Island, a flower show at Toronto, country side winter scenes. Cyril shows maple syrup making. The meeting closed with singing "The Maple Leaf".

Parade on Wheels

The spectators were as enthusiastic as the participants at The Children's Nursery Centre's Parade on Wheels on Friday Morning. Above, freelance photographer Darryl Bennett focuses on some of the activity [That tall shadow he's throwing is his father, Lionel]. Top, right Dale Bateman won second prize for a very real rendition of a bicycle-bound Jolly Roger. At left this young pair took the idea of having their pictures taken very seriously; in spite of much urging they refused to smile. Once the ordeal was over, however, they broke into broad grins. Below, one of the 50-odd bicycle riders who made the parade what it was.

Imaginations ran wild as the fifty-odd entrants of the Children's Nursery Centre "Parade-On-Wheels" decorated their bikes with everything under the sun to produce a colourful spectacle for Forsythe St. parade watchers and a difficult time for judges on Friday morning.

There were pirates, cowboys, circuses on wheels...leading the parade was a "custom" Volkswagen with a large stuffed dog as a hood ornament...another dog, this one very real was the feature of a two piece caravan known as the circus... another little girls pulled a cage with a brown rabbit inside as part of a gorgeously decorated entry...and still in the wildlife section were three ponies. The parade finished up with a marching band and an antique car.

Eventually the judges did have to pick some winners though and first prize was awarded to Peter McCoy in the Nursery School Wagon; 2nd prize went to Pirate Dale Bateman and Krista Bonter and her rabbit, Ginger, took third high. Winners of honorable mentions included: Corgy Golden, Steven Plumb, Tara Landry, Julie Papi, Ryan Caldwell, Justin Caldwell and Barbara Glenviski.

The parade wended its way, shortly and sweetly, from the big parking lot behind the hotel to the park where, after the judging, a fun fair got underway. Kids and adults (there were at least as many "adults" as children) stuffed themselves with hotdogs and pop and tried their hand at various games of skill.

The organisers of this enthusiastic and well-planned event, the Children's Nursery Centre, certainly deserve congratulations.

Manpower Report

Drew S. Gusolus, S.P.O.

Attention employers - this week I would like to make you aware of forthcoming changes in the minimum wage laws and refresh your memory on other points of employment laws.

The Ontario minimum wage laws are changing on August 1, 1978. A student 18 years of age or over must receive a minimum of $2.85 per hour (formerly $2.65). The basic student rate of $2.15 per hour for students under the age of 18 and who work less than 28 hours a week will remain unchanged. Construction minimum rates will become $3.15 an hour, up from $2.90. Minimum hourly rates for an employee who serves liquor directly to a customer in any place for which a permit or license has been issued under the Liquor Licence Act will remain at $2.50 an hour.

Another point to remember is that all employees are entitled to vacation pay at the rate of four per cent of all monies earned. No minimum period of employment is required for qualification. Employees must receive vacation pay on termination of their employment.

Normally, as soon as a worker goes on an employer's payroll, income tax deductions are automatically made from his wages at source. Student employees may claim exemption from income tax deductions at source by filing a T.D.I. form, supplied by the employer. It must certify that their earnings for the year will not exceed the basic exemption.

For those employers who are still not aware, the Ontario Youth Employment Program which paid $1.25 per hour toward the wages of students, is no longer operating. Funds for this Provincial Government program were depleted as of June 4, 1978.

Jobs are still needed for students in the Marmora and Tweed areas. Jobs suitable for female students are needed in the Madoc areas as well. Employers are reminded to call the Student Manpower office at 473-4251 each Wednesday in order to hire a student. Remember! This summer - Hire A Student!

Gathering of the Clans

All the living members of the O'Neill and Kilpatrick families gathered at the home of Marianne and Dave Handley on the Old Marmora Road just outside Madoc on Saturday July 1st.

A total of 19 attended the family reunion: the four O'Neill sisters, Sister Mary Josephine of Brockville, Dorothy and Reg Lone of Marmora, Mrs. Margaret Storer of Peterborough; her daughter Rita and husband John Cooke with their two children Dwayne and Sandra (all from Edmonton, Alberta); and Mary and Cecil Kilpatrick of Marmora with their daughters and families - Mr. and Mrs. Gord Price and daughters Jennifer and Kristin (from Renfrew); and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Handley with sons Jude and Simon. The oldest surviving member of the family, who enjoyed the reunion most of all, was Mrs. Beatrice Kilpatrick of Marmora. It is ten years since the families last had a reunion.

George Bateman

George Simpson Bateman of Springbrook died in his home on June 22 in his 61st year. Mr. Bateman was born in Marmora and was a farmer and a lead hand at Deloro Stelite. He was a member of the Stirling Legion and the Stormont-Dundas-Glengarry Highlanders Regiment and St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw.

He is survived by his wife, Clara (nee Semmons), a son John of Orillia, Ontario and a daughter Vicki (Mrs. Robert Carter) of Casselman. He also leaves two brothers, Harry of Marmora and Percy of Springbrook and a sister, Mrs. Theda Nobes of Stirling. He was predeceased by two sisters, Myrtle and Florence.

International Soil Scientists Visit Area

Soil scientists from Great Britain, Russia, Germany and other European countries were given an ecotour of the Canadian Shield on June 15th.

Alec Denys and Bill Hutchison of the Ministry of Natural Resources, Tweed District, conducted the Tour from Perth to Actinolite. Discussions on the physiography, geology, flora, fauna, colonization, land use, logging and fire history were held.

A visit to an unique cactus site was the highlight of the Tour. The cactus site is perhaps the most fascinating botanical anomalous in the Tweed District. This is the eastern most occurrence of Opuntia fragilis, which has its next station in the State of Wisconsin, U.S.A.

The scientists left Actinolite for Edmonton, Alberta, to attend the Eleventh International Congress of Soil Sciences.

Organizations or groups wishing to have tour guide assistance should contact the District Manager at Tweed.

Canada Week

Firecrackers are the way that North Americans traditionally celebrate a special occasion and the past week in Canada was no exception. People all over the country came together in large crowds to watch these colourful displays.

Large Muskie Caught in Stoco

Chris Adams and Clayton Johnston of Belleville have once again proved that there are big fish in this area's lakes. They were fishing in Stoco Lake at Greenwood Park recently when they hooked an 18 pound, 41 inch Muskie. Many big fish are caught every year in this area although this is one of the first that we have heard about this year. There have probably been many more than this caught already, but many of these have not been reported because fishermen hate to tell anyone where they made the catch because they don't like to have other people invading their fishing domain. Congratulations Chris and Clayton and good luck for the rest of the season.

Wagon Improves Life on The Farm

Farm machinery has, like all other machinery in the twentieth century, become very sophisticated and has continued to improve as time goes by. The biggest and most obvious changes have come in hay baling with the introduction of bale throwers which have cut down on the number of people required to handle the hay. Maurice Goulah, of Cooper, has recently purchased a machine that not only cuts the number of people needed to handle the hay, but, it also means that the farmer does not have to handle the hay until it is actually in the mow.

Before the advent of bale throwers, there were two main ways of handling the hay. One way was to bale the hay and then come along with a wagon and at least three - more likely four - people, and load the bales onto the wagon and then take them to the barn. The other way was to hook a wagon directly behind the baler and have a couple of people building the load on the wagon. This new machine that Maurice has eliminates all of the workers except the man on the tractor. The hay is baled on the ground and then you hook onto this machine which combines as a wagon and a machine that picks up the bales and places them on the wagon, so that one man can do all of the work until the hay goes into the mow.

It works like this:

1) You pull into a baled field of hay and just follow the rows around the field. The bales go into a chute that is chain driven and they are flipped onto their sides and moved across the front of the machine.

2) After two bales are pushed across the front of the machine in this fashion, a lever is tripped and the two bales are then flipped up and onto a flat bed at the front of the wagon part of the machine.

3) This step is repeated until you have eight bales on this bed and then another lever is tripped and the eight bales and the flat bed flip up and place the bales on the front of the wagon that is high at the front and angles down towards the back. The bales are pushed against two huge forks that stand straight up on the wagon with two little arms coming down and preventing the bales from falling forward. The flat bed then returns automatically to its original position and the steps are repeated.

In the top right picture, Maurice Goulah watches as a bale is picked up and placed

When the flat area becomes full, it automatically tips up and places the bales

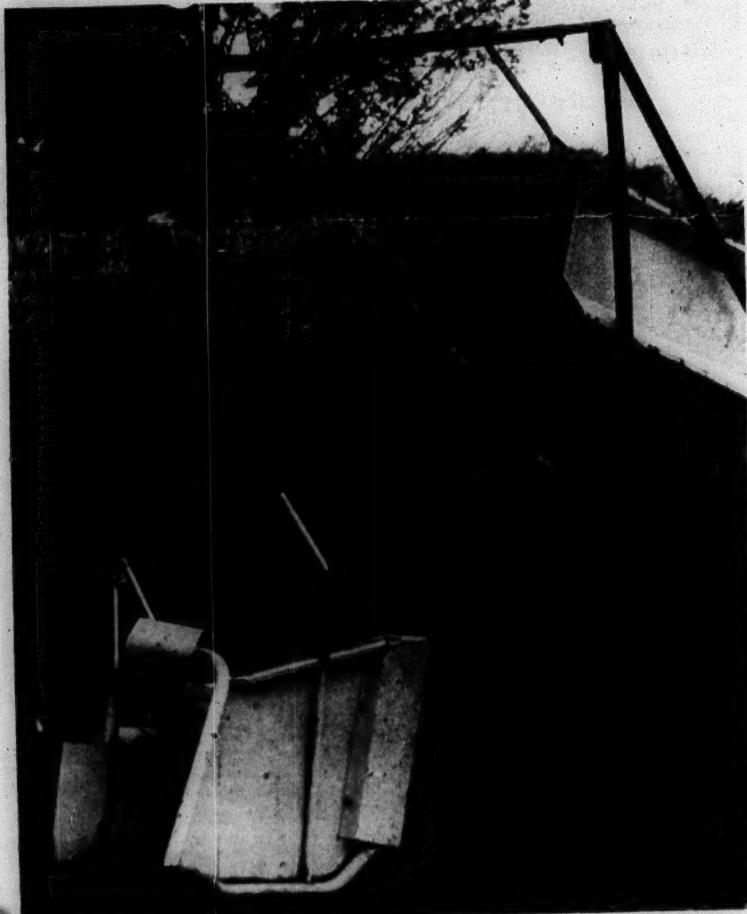

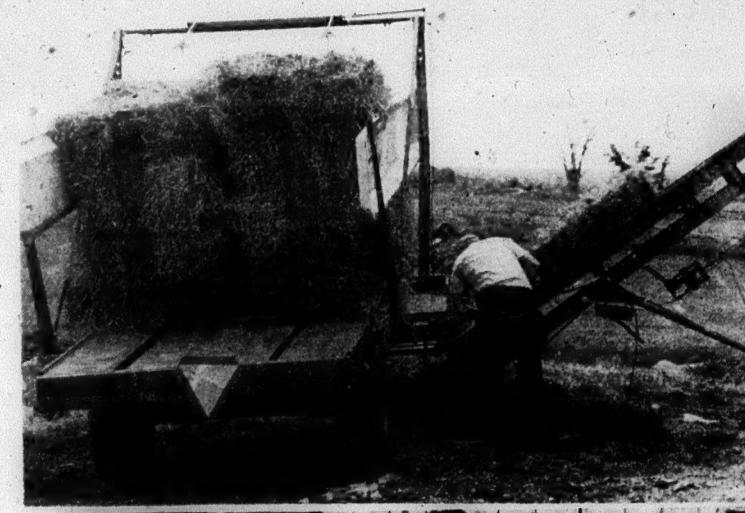

At the barn, the procedure is reversed and the bales are automatically unloaded onto the elevator. Technically, one man

4) When eight more bales are on the flat bed, it again flips up and this time it pushes the first eight bales backwards along the wagon and replaces them with the next eight bales. Everything is repeated until the wagon is full, when you simply head for the barn and pull in beside the elevator into the mow.

5) Now comes the amazing part! After positioning it carefully beside the elevator, you push a lever that reverses the whole process allowing the bales to come back down onto the flat bed, eight bales at a time, where two bales are then placed on a conveying chain and placed one at a time on the elevator.

If all conditions were perfect and the machine ran flawlessly, you could probably do the whole operation with just one man, but, unfortunately, machines seldom run flawlessly and Maurice stays by the machine when it is unloading the hay while the one other person places the bales in the mow.

There are a few minor flaws in this machine but Maurice felt that they may have been as much his fault as the machine. He had just begun using the machine a few days before I went to see it in operation and he wasn't completely familiar with it. On the day that I went up to watch it in operation, we pulled into a field that had some very steep hills in it and he did have some problems keeping the bales in place. After one trip into this field, Maurice realized that the bales had to be a uniform length and slightly smaller than usual. He also had to travel slower on the hills and drive as smoothly as possible to keep the bales from moving around on the flat bed. After he remedied this, things worked smoothly and went as they should. On flat land, there were almost no problems, although every now and then, a bale would be slightly crooked on the ground and you would either have to maneuver the tractor to approach it properly or else get off the tractor and straighten the bale. This is an ideal set-up for the person who prefers to keep the hired help to a minimum or for those who just can't afford more help. It takes away the heavy work involved in haying makes the work much easier. What will they think of next?

Experiment Seeks To Induce Rainfall

A four week experiment to induce rainfall by cloud seeding as an aid to forest fire fighting will be conducted jointly by Environmental Canada's Atmospheric Environment Service and the National Research Council between June 19 and July 14 in northwestern Ontario.

The study, announced by Environment Minister Len Marchand, is a continuation of similar research carried out last year, and will again be based at Thunder Bay.

Airborne measurements undertaken in this research program have shown that an induced rainshower can yield between five and twelve million litres of water in a period of 20 minutes. A Canso water bomber, an aircraft commonly used to fight forest fires, carries about 3,600 litres of water.

The objective of the experiment is to determine whether rain can indeed be induced artificially by observing the physical changes which occur within the cloud following seeding.

Typically, individual cumuliform clouds about five kilometres in diameter and three kilometres deep will be chosen for seeding. The seeding will be done by a T-33 jet aircraft using silver iodide flares. The aircraft will fly through the cloud near its top, at an altitude of approximately 4,500 metres. The flares do not constitute an environmental or forest fire hazard.

A Twin Otter aircraft equipped with sophisticated cloud physics instrumentation will monitor the results of the seeding operation by observing the formation of ice crystals within the cloud - a measure of the effectiveness of seeding. A third aircraft flying at cloud base near 1,500 metres will observe and measure any rainfall produced.

Tarot: Guide to Your Future?

by JEANNETTE MOORE

Want to know what the future holds for you? Do you have a problem whose solution eludes you? Now you can take your questions to a Tarot card reader in the area.

This week, Betty Wilkins, who operates the Hastings submarine store along with husband Cal, opened a tearoom above the shop and is giving Tarot card readings to the interested.

These cards, consisting of a pack of 78 which are like very large size playing cards are very ancient and their origin is buried in the mists of antiquity. Some historians say they originated in Egypt, but not all agree on the country. However, all agree the pictures are mystic symbols with ancient religions and philosophies embedded in them. Many of the symbols show influences from numerology, astrology, and color symbolism.

Mrs. Wilkins says she has always been somewhat psychic and always interested in seeing for herself if such things as Tarot card really work. She has been studying various books for two years and says the process of reading the cards involves memorizing several volumes (she still feels she must consult them at times). As important as the book knowledge is the right atmosphere for relaxation of herself and subject, and so she has completed a room overlooking the river furnished with antiques which she has collected and refinished herself. "A modern setting like an office just wouldn't be right" she said. "I must maintain the correct atmosphere or just cannot get the proper attitude for concentration. One must have a place where the cards belong". As well as the antique furniture she has made two macrame wall hangings embodying two Tarot Symbols, and these fit in with the restful atmosphere.

I thought it might be fun to see what the cards foretold for me. We sat down at an antique table which should be lined up exactly with the north and south poles, but had not as yet been correctly placed, and I was asked to shuffle and put my thoughts into the shuffling. You don't have to tell your thoughts, so I kept them to myself. After shuffling, I cut the cards and Mrs. Wilkins dealt 11 cards from the top laying them in an order specified by her authorities on the subject. Each card means something in itself but is influenced by those around it. There are two different positions for each and at least five different meanings depending on the influencing cards.

She says people in a way find their own answers to their problems in the cards by studying them with her. She is continually amazed by the way the cards turn out, she says. "I really enjoy working with them."

"I feel I'm giving people something. The advice is always so good. I respect the cards and want people to do the same."

The cards amazed me too. I found no fortune in money coming to me. There were problems ahead to be solved, but that is to be expected. And then there were several things to which it gave an answer that no one but myself would know about, but perhaps I got the answer from myself, as Mrs. Wilkins had said, but at least I gave myself a good answer. But what was really a great achievement in the way I had shuffled the deck was the fact that out of 76 cards, the one supposedly culminating my life's struggle was the prize of all the cards. Like a rainbow in the sky was depicted a series of cups to which a figure was looking up. This is the best card of the lot, according to Mrs. Wilkins and just to have it show up is great, but to have it as the final conclusion is much to be desired - that is to have all one's cups of happiness filled.

Mrs. Wilkins has other ways of solving problems. She has studied I Ching, a Chinese method of divination. The Chinese believed the course of life unchangeable. Only an ignorant man would tell the gods what to do. Thus, I Ching was written as an appeal for guidance -- and the object is to give advice in harmony with the laws of nature and which will act as a guide in one's quest for a happier, more successful life. Confucius said of I Ching "Give me a few more years so that I may have spent a whole 50 in study (of the I Ching) and I believe that after all I should be fairly free from error".

For the I Ching reading Mrs. Wilkins will mail her answer writing on the I Ching colors - orange paper with gold-lined envelope and written with a black pen.

The method of getting the reading is to throw three tokens seven times and follow through with the ancient instructions.

So there you are. You can take your problems to Mrs. Wilkins and for a fee you can sip tea from a gold cup and hear what the ancients have decreed about the way your cards and tokens fall.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd., Elmsira, Ont. N3B 2C7

Leaders in metro and regional governments — and provincial governments — are fine friends of agriculture and of farmers as long as their wishes do not interfere and as long as farmers pat them on the back.

"But when farmers dare disagree, the politicians and those senior bureaucrats become distant and cool. How dare you ignorant country bumpkins disagree with us!"

If those words have a familiar ring, it is because you read them here more than a month ago when regional government was being discussed. I said then that everybody likes the good ole farmer until the farmer dares to disagree with a city counterpart.

It is happening again to those of you who are familiar with the Bruce Trail. Some of you may remember that a few years ago dozens of farmers from Niagara in the south to Tobermory in the north gave permission for hikers to walk across their properties. Hiking privileges were granted over private property.

Farmers are usually friendly, neighborly people and this privilege seemed like a friendly, neighborly thing to do. The permission was usually a handshake, quite enough for most ruralites.

But it is like everything else. Give them an inch and they take a yard. Give them a centimetre and they want a metre. Those hiking privileges are now considered by a great many non-rural people to be a right, not a privilege granted by the landowner. Some — by no means all — of these outdoor lovers of hiking are incensed because some farmers and landowners along the Bruce Trail have decided to post their properties and not allow the hikers to use the property.

The reasons? Perfectly sound and valid. Too many hikers were leaving too much crap along the trail. They were leaving empty bottles, cartons, paper, used equipment on the trail. They were violating other promises, too, such as leaving farm gates open, tramping through planted fields instead of sticking to fences. Starting little fires that became big fires. Holding parties until the wee, sma' hours of the morning.

And landowners got sick of it. They decided not to renew those rights-of-trespass. Can you blame them?

Yet they are being chastized for being selfish, for not allowing the great Canadian public access to one of nature's most beautiful trails.

The co-operative hikers say they are being made to pay for a few clowns and cowboys who wouldn't know how to act even at home, let alone in the open. Be that as it may: The majority always have to suffer for the sins of the minority.

I think, though, that the problem can be solved. In fact, D.A. Shields of Etobicoke, in a letter to a Toronto paper, has an excellent solution.

To show good faith and a willingness to co-operate, he recommends a reciprocal agreement. There are many farm families who would welcome an opportunity to get away for a Sunday. The shady lawns, patios and swimming pools of York Mills and Rosedale would provide a refreshing change.

"I suggest," writes D.A. Shields, "that all city dwellers who leave the city for the weekend post a symbol on the front lawn to indicate that the general public is welcome to use their property.

The cars and pickups rolling into Toronto would balance the traffic flow on weekends and, more importantly, owners of scenic resources (farmlands) would feel that city people are serious about sharing and co-operating.

Three cheers for Shields of Etobicoke! And a tiger.

When the shoe is on the other foot, can you see how many city people would co-operate and allow farmers to fill their backyards on the weekends? Not very many. Yet, this is exactly what many farmers have allowed city people to do in developing the Bruce Trail and a good many other scenic resources across this province.

Think about it, my city-slicker friends. Would you allow it to happen and then get angry because the privilege was withdrawn?

And say! The farmers could leave some of their own garbage behind just to be fair.

How about a few sacks of pig manure strewn around the lawn? Or some cow dung in the swimming pool?

Nature Delivers Knock-out Blow To Caterpillars

Nature is delivering a knockout punch this summer to wriggling clusters of forest tent caterpillars that have plagued the Parry Sound-Muskoka Districts for the past three years.

Insect control officials with the Ministry of Natural Resources say swarms of large parasitic flies—Sarcophaga aldrichi—are a major factor in the 90 per cent reduction in the number of caterpillars in the southern Georgian Bay cottage country.

Larger and hairier than common house flies, the Sarcophaga flies lay live larvae, or maggots, on the tent caterpillar cocoons. These maggots feed on and destroy the caterpillars in their pupal stage.

Dr. Rod Carrow, provincial pest control supervisor, said the increase of Sarcophaga flies is a natural phenomenon connected with outbreaks of tent caterpillars which occur about once every 12 years.

"When the flies destroy the host caterpillars, they disappear and this current batch should be gone by the end of June," he said.

Until then, however, the flies continue to prompt numerous calls from annoyed cottagers, many of whom believe a common myth that the ministry is raising and releasing them to combat the caterpillars.

"In recent weeks, we were getting 40 calls a day, many from very irritated people who demanded we stop releasing flies," said Dr. Carrow.

"We are not raising and releasing the flies, we never have and we don't have any plans to get into that type of program. But the myth continues to persist."

The flies don't bite, but like house flies they are an annoying eyesore. In caterpillar-infested areas they buzz around cottages and beaches by the thousands, usually picking out warm spots to gather, such as picnic tables, car roofs, windows or clothes drying on a line.

"There's really not much you can do about them," said Dr. Carrow. "They will be gone when the caterpillars are gone. Next year people won't even notice them."

Dr. Carrow said the tent caterpillar, fortunately is also prey to another naturally-occurring control agent—a tiny parasitic insect that attacks egg clusters, Trichogramma minutum.

Ministry foresters said tent caterpillar outbreaks this summer have been heavy north of Parry Sound, as predicted, but the heavy infestation west of Peterborough has not become evident, although spring egg counts were significant.

Now's The Time To Think About Milk Quality

With the warm summer weather on the way, now is the time to think about milk quality problems you may encounter and do something to prevent them.

High bacteria counts are more prevalent in summer than winter months. This is due to sanitation and cooling problems. Cold weather helps to keep bacteria dormant—they may be present but grow slowly and cause few problems. In summer, the same bacteria, under warmer conditions, suddenly become very active and may double in number every twenty to thirty minutes.

Milk must be cooled rapidly and maintained at a temperature of 1 to 4.5 degrees Celsius (33 to 40 degrees Fahrenheit). Cooling in warm weather places a much greater strain on your bulk tank so make sure it is operating properly. Check the refrigerant level—is it at capacity? Open the air vents in front of the refrigeration unit, or open screen windows to allow air circulation. Be sure the thermometer on the tank is accurate and check the temperature regularly. The milk should be cooled and the unit off, within one hour of completing milking. Remove dust from fans and condenser coils.

To ensure low bacteria counts, your milking equipment must be spotlessly clean after each milking and sanitized prior to the next milking. Sometimes a winter cleaning problem can go undetected until it surfaces as a summer high bacteria count. Therefore it is wise to check your equipment at this time of year, especially with a pipeline system. The horizontal section of pipeline from the receiver jar to the bulk tank should be spotless. Vacuum lines should be cleaned regularly. Vacuum hoses should be cleaned inside and out daily. Inflations must be replaced every 1,000 to 1,200 cow milkings.

Don't depend on your pink quality card to tell you that you have a problem. Check your equipment today, and prevent a rejected tank of milk.

Antique Show Attracts 400

The first Annual St. John's ACW Antique Show was very successful. So they are hoping to make it an annual event and they expect to be able to keep the quality of the show as high as it was this year. Many of the local dealers were in attendance and they were very pleased with the way the show was organised and with the attendance at the show. The show was held on Tuesday, July 11th, and Wednesday, July 12th, and there were arguments both for and against the show being held

The displays of antiques at the St. John's ACW Antique Show, held in Madoc at the Anglican Church Hall, were well laid out and of surprisingly good quality for a show that was the first of its kind in this area. Mrs. Peacock's Depression Glass display in the centre-left of this photograph was generally considered the feature of the show although every dealer was of the highest quality as were the antiques.

Review: New Hours, Upcoming Special & a Proposed Calendar

Things are back to normal at the Madoc Review; after some time running on short hours and with less staff, we find ourselves firmly back on our feet and able to once again start operating the office full days. Jean Asselstine is once again back in the office handling the morning traffic and is now doing added duty - something she has been doing for a while - as an advertising salesman and reporter for The Review. We know that many people will be happy to see her back and pleased to have the more convenient hours we can now offer.

Here at the Review and Cembal Publications we're more than pleased with the support we've received from the community over the past few months. As we head towards the high point of this centennial year - homecoming week - we're busy putting together what we hope will be a fitting special edition.

And speaking of special edition we're also pleased to announce that we have a winner for our Centennial Masthead Contest. What looked at first would be a non-response turned out to be very encouraging. A number of people tried their hands and we had a tough time making the decision. We're not saying until the issue comes out who won, but we will say we're very proud of the masthead we'll soon be displaying.

Another new service we hope to offer soon is a community calendar in the Madoc Review. This will be a full-page calendar, around the outside, of which will be displayed advertisements from a number of community businesses. It requires two things - firstly businesses that will support it (and it is an excellent way of advertising at a very reasonable rate) and secondly, co-operation from service clubs, organisations, sports groups etc. in advertising their events in the calendar. In Marmora, where we already have this going, it has proved invaluable as a weekly reference to know what's going on at a glance in your community. So watch for us.

And remember - we're now open all day, Monday through Friday for your convenience.

Summer Gardens

On Monday, July 17th, the Madoc Hotel Summer Gardens will be open to its patrons. The official opening will take place on Friday, July 21st at twelve o'clock noon with music on hand and free refreshments will be available. The gardens will be open during daylight hours from noon daily seven days a week. The capacity of the gardens is forty-five and these people will be able to utilize the dining room and pizza menus.

through the week although it appears that these arguments may have been negated by the excellent turnout and sales at the show.

When people first entered the Anglican Church Hall, their first reaction was usually how well the show was laid out and how well the displays looked. The soft lighting in the hall was ideal for the display of antiques and especially for the many different varieties of glass that were on display. It was, generally felt that Mrs. Peacock's display of Depression Glass was the feature of the show, even though there were many other displays that were very well presented. All of the dealers who attended the show were very reputable and many of them made it a special point to comment on the outstanding job of organizing and advertising the ACW had done and they were sure that this had contributed to the success of the show. Most of these dealers felt that they would be more than happy to attend a similar show next year.

Helen Reed and Annette Taylor were the convenors of the show and Annette felt that they had ten of the best dealers at the show even though they had to turn down many other applications from dealers because of lack of space. The first day of the show saw about two hundred and thirty-five people from all over eastern Ontario visit the show. People came from Kingston, Ottawa, Picton, Oshawa, Peterborough and one couple even travelled all the way from Brantford just to see the show. The second day's attendance was only about half of the first day's, but everyone felt that this was only natural. It was the first show of this kind in the area and many people really didn't know what to expect. Now that it has been proven that this show can be a success, next year's show is expected to be even better.

"Armie" Handcuffs Campbellford in 3 - 1 Win

Campbellford must have thought the clock had suddenly been turned back a month as they encountered the Madoc squad last Thursday night in Madoc. As on that fateful night, Armie's brilliant mound work once again dazzled the opposition and one by one, each batter fell into the traps arranged by our skillful pitcher and Harold Bailey.

Armie (Brenan Armstrong) not only set the pace of the game but displayed equal power at bat. Early in the game, he blasted the ball so far that the centre fielder was still chasing it when he charged across home plate. Dave Fleming followed this up by bouncing once over the third baseman's head allowing him to secure second base. In rapid succession, Bob Willemsen repeated Fleming's performance thus driving Fleming home. An error by Campbellford transformed Bob's double into a homerun.

Late in the game, Campbellford caused the Minute Men some anxious moments as they suddenly grabbed control. This was shortlived however, as the "Manager of the mound" quickly retired the Campbellford resulted in a final score of 3-1.

On Thursday night of this week Madoc will oppose the Stirling Pats in Stirling. In the last week of July, the Madoc Minute Men are participating in a tournament in Grafton. Spectators would be very welcome.

The Deckhands Puppet Show was about forty children turned out. More featured at the Madoc Library last week. Pictures on page 6

Madoc Meat Market Changes Hands

The Madoc Meat Market, which has been owned by the Fox family for twenty-five years, was recently purchased by Mr. Jim Watson. The Market is thought to have opened originally in Madoc shortly after the war with the Fox family becoming the owners in June of 1953. Terry Fox has been operating the business for many years now, but his father owned the business before him. Mr. Watson has taken over the business since July 1st, but Terry will continue to assist with the store's operation.

The Meat Market has been thought of as a place where you could go and rent locker space for the storing of meat or other frozen products. The store still offers this service but it is by no means the only service that they have to offer. Since freezers have become an everyday household appliance, the emphasis has been taken off the lockers and additional services have been added. The main business now is the custom cutting and retailing of meats. A good line of groceries has been added to give the Market a variety store capability. The number of storage lockers has been reduced from about five hundred to between one and two hundred and the additional space provides more bulk freezing space with which Mr. Watson and Mr. Fox plan to investigate the rental of bulk freezing space.

They have a chill room in operation where the temperature is around freezing for the preservation of fruit and vegetables; a freezing room (at 0 degree Fahrenheit) for the storing of frozen meat, and there is another room that supplies a quick freezing capability for meat. These two men have not been seriously affected by the meat packer's strike because they are served by Canada Packers, Snider's, Strano Foods, of Peterborough, Neilson's and Mark Tripp. This has allowed them to continue supplying a good selection of meats plus they also supplied the beef hips for the recent Kinsmen Beef Barbecue.

Do they supply any other services? Yes, they certainly do! They also carry cube and block ice. Neilson's ice cream, they will continue to carry some lines of fresh fruit

Mr. Terry Fox hands over the keys to the Madoc Meat Market to Mr. Jim Watson, the new owner since July 1st. The store specializes in the custom cutting and retailing of meats with freezer storage space still available, but they have many additional services designed to supply their invited to come in and look them over.

The Meat Market is now open from Mondays to Saturdays with the regular hours being from 8:30 AM to 6:00 PM and they are open on Friday nights until 9:00 PM. Mr. Watson added, "We are customers with one stop shopping. They also specialize in store sliced cold cut meats.

considering opening on Sundays for the convenience of the tourists in the area." He also remarked, "We provide refrigeration for customers who may wish to store fish on a short term basis or weigh the big muskies on our scales."

Madoc Families Attend Witnesses' Convention

Many families from the Madoc area were among 80,000 delegates who packed out Montreal's Olympic Park for the finale of the "Victorious Faith" International Convention of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Local spokesman, Mr. Arthur West said Frederick W. Franz, President of the Watch Tower Society, spoke on the subject: "Jesus Christ—Victorious King With Whom Nations Must Reckon".

Discussing the "social environment" in society today, Franz said things are in a bad way. "We might think of the day of reckoning that is approaching because of the decline in good morals that is taking place in all lands," he said.

Speaking of another area of concern, the arms race, Franz said the United Nations has offered no inducement for slowing it down and the nations rely upon military preparedness for safety.

UNTOUCHABLE RELIGION

"But there is still another sector of human affairs that is due for a reckoning," Franz said, "a sector that may seem to many of us to be an untouchable thing, like something sacrosanct...It is religion!"

Franz said religion has proved to be the most divisive force on earth. "It has separated races, nations, people, tribes and even members of a family," he said. "Thus it has caused human disunity. Differences of religions have led to bitter hatreds and prejudices, sadly to violent conflicts," he continued, "to feuds that have lasted for centuries down to now."

Pointing to Christendom, Franz said "she has been most outstanding in this respect. Because of hideous wars her realm has been stained with seas of human blood," he said.

A DAY OF RECKONING

Franz stressed that Jesus Christ, as King, is the one with whom the nations must reckon. "When...on earth...he had his enemies. Not strange, then, that he still has enemies on earth since his enthronement as King in heaven...Today the world has not turned to loving Jesus Christ," Franz said.

Stressing that world governments would never yield their authority to a kingdom with Jesus Christ as ruler, Franz said, "Jesus Christ has to put up a real fight for this cause. The nations will have to reckon with him in a violent war."

Concluding, Franz said that rulers of the world show no humility before God. "They do not yield peacefully to earth's rightful King, Jesus Christ," he said, "who showed the greatest humility before God and who championed all the helpless ones on earth.

"Mankind needs to be given a new start in righteousness. Hence the Warrior King Jesus Christ must ride in the cause of righteousness and fight for the establishment of a New Order over all the earth."

A highlight of the convention was the baptism of 831 new Witnesses at special services at Montreal's Olympic pool.

West said the convention has strengthened the resolve of the local witnesses to continue their house to house visitation program in this area.

Reminiscences And Reflections

This is a column collected from conversations with and letters from Senior Citizens in the district. It is not just memories, for who does not have memories? It is more of the skills and know-how of yesteryear that we are re-discovering e.g. how folks used to make soap, used herbs for cures, bartered labor for goods and also it will contain comments on matters that still concern us - how to bring up children, education, morals, political participation, cost of and standard of living. So if any Senior Citizens would like to be interviewed on a particular area in which they are knowledgeable - newspapers, trades, folk-lore, medicine, music - as it was in the early years of the 20th century, please drop a line to the paper and we'll see what we can do. All household hints, medicine for live-stock etc. that date from those times would also be welcome.

Goats, as anyone who reads Harrowsmith (and many who don't) knows are becoming very popular these days, but this week I spoke to a fine lady who kept goats in the '20's, and as a homesteader, got milk, butter and cheese this way. Mrs. Edna Cleave spoke of the years she and her first husband (who came from Sidney township) homesteaded in Saskatchewan. If goats were one thing that she remembered fondly, cranberries were the other. They settled on muskeg land and it was covered in cranberries; as Mrs. Cleave put it, you could sit on one clump and pick cranberries all around you.

Of course in homesteading, the house and barn come first, but somewhere along the line come chickens and the need for a hen house, goats, and a wagon for the team of horses they had. Later they got an old Titan tractor but horses were used for clearing the land and was the only way to travel places. After a while, other homesteaders arrived (each with their 160 acres) and Mrs. Cleave decided they needed a church. The men got together and put up a log building, and later this doubled as the school. One of Mrs. Cleave's memories was walking along the rail-road tracks several nights of the week to go to the church and rehearse the choir.

She spoke of skills that a young generation are now re-discovering - butter, cheese and soap-making. Once a week Mrs. Cleave would churn the separated cream and then, using a large wooden bowl and ladle, she added the salt. The butter was then put in a container and stored in the cellar (a hole dug in the kitchen floor). Goat cheese was made by heating the milk, and when it soured, letting it drip through a colander. Of course, Mrs. Cleave was enthusiastic about goats, they need little feed and supply milk, butter and cheese.

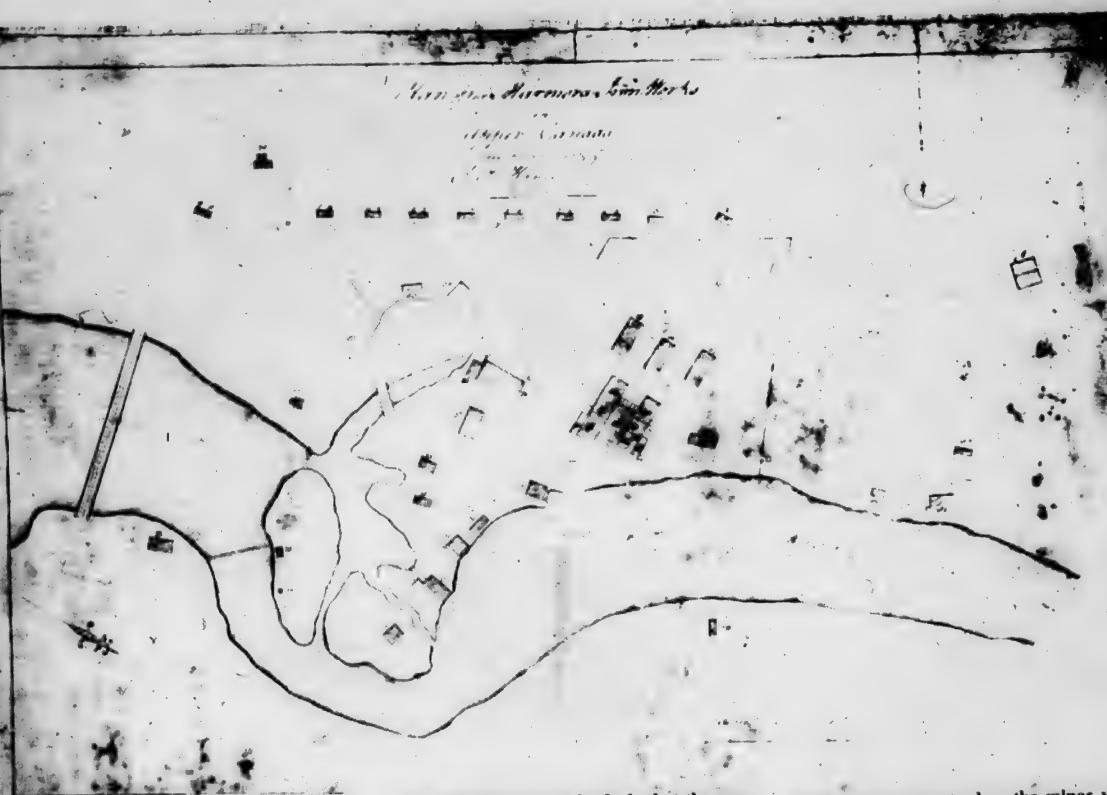

Hunting filled a large part of their ladder and Mrs. Cleave hunted as well. The way she put the meat up it would last for years; beef, moose and even an elk. How did she can the meat? After she had cut it in pieces, Mrs. Cleave put it in a sealer (jar). She added salt and pepper and covered it with water. Then the lid was tightened and unscrewed a little. Next she put it in a kettle so that the jar was covered in water and boiled it for three hours. When the jar was removed, the lid was tightened.

For soap, Mrs. Cleave melted the fat from the meat and added the lye that had been dissolved in water. She stirred it and then left it to sit. It didn't always set (sometimes there was too much fat) but it could still clean clothes anyway.

It was very much an Eatons catalogue world when it came to getting butter-churns and yard goods. Also each year they would have to stock a year's supply of staples; so they would take 400 lbs of flour, 200 lbs of white and 50 lbs of brown sugar, salt, pepper and a 5 gal. can of baking powder.

As Mrs. Cleave says, they were young and it was a real challenge. Many young people feel the need of such a challenge to-day, as they return to reclaim dis-used farms, and the urge to be self-supporting is just as strong now. Maybe they would take honey instead of white sugar but the energy and enthusiasm is the same. Her energy might be diminished but as I talked to Mrs. Cleave at Edward Street Manor, the excitement of homesteading is still with her. Speaking of the Yukon, her face got kind of wistful and she said, "The Yukon, yes I'd like to homestead there."

Archaeologists look for Remains of Iron Ore Plant

This map is one of the tools that the crew trying to find the location of the Number 2 Blast Furnace from the Old Marmora Iron Works used. Mr. Arthur Dunn, a historian with the group, says he feels that the map may not be quite accurate, contradicting as it does in part the description of the site given below. This is a report made to the federal government when the mines were being considered as a possible site for using convict labour from the Kingston Penitentiary.

statements in which respect they are enabled to submit by politeness of the Honorable Peter McGill, the proprietor: In connexion with the furnaces, is a large and substantial stone building, containing two trip hammers and four forge fires, for the purpose of making bar iron, with two wheels which trip the hammers, and four wheels that propel the bellows, one to each fire. This factory, put in active and kept in constant operation, is capable of making five tons of bar iron per week, of all sizes and descriptions, and is now in a state requiring but moderate repair to fit it for immediate use.

On the forge bank, a clear area of two acres, is another well built coal house, of equal size with those belonging to the furnaces; attached to the forges is a convenient carpenter's shop, sufficiently spacious to accommodate five workmen, with a lathe and grinding stone impelled by water, the upper loft of this shop forming a convenient and spacious moulding and framing room for moulding, planning, and putting together large patterns and moulds - opposite, and at a convenient distance between the furnaces and forges, stands the general pattern store, and occupied besides as a casting and bar iron sale and deposit store, a good frame building, built on a solid foundation on the water's edge.

Next on the Falls occur in their order, the blacksmith's forge, suited for two smiths, with benches and utensils complete - a bakery - the baker and miller's house, adjacent to a respectable grist mill, the under story of stone, the upper handsome, substantial, well finished frame work, one run of stones and a smut machine, contiguous to which is a superior saw mill, newly built, with two pit saws and a circular saw - and near thereto, on a small island, a situation admirably adapted for the purpose, is a substantial two-story building - under story stone, the upper story frame-work, filled into a most complete tannery, with vats, utensils, and bark mill complete - added to these are several very valuable dwelling houses, some of them stone - a stone store and offices - a barn, barn yard and sheds, forming in the view of the Commissioners, more complete and substantial establishment, than on its scale of magnitude can be met with in all North America.

St. Thomas Church To Be Saved

St. Thomas' Anglican Church in Rawdon Township has received a two-year stay of execution.

The church was slated for demolition late last month by the elders of the parish; this decision was reversed July 10th after the diocesan consulting architect brought forth a brief arguing that to tear the structure down would be a mistake for historical, architectural and other reasons.

The Reverend J.A. Howard, pastor of the parish which includes St. Thomas as well as St. Paul's, Marmora, and St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, said that there will be "no thought of demolition for at least two years. During that time there will be one or two services a year to keep it alive and a committee will be appointed to look after the building."

Mr. Howard also said that the diocese had given money to help look after the building - $125.00 a year; this he said might be augmented by the parish or other donors.

The architect's brief, which was the basis of the change of decision, was prepared by N.K. MacLennan who is the consulting architect for the diocese and a member of heritage Canada. He made his argument for conservation on seven points:

1) Historically, the building is nearly one hundred years old and in good shape. "It is a highly visible reminder of the early life of the area...its importance in the landscape cannot be taken lightly. Because of this the building could be termed a Heritage Building and, as such, belongs to the public of this province."

2) The site of the building, as a grouping with the Tanner Orange Lodge and the Tanner farmhouse is an important heritage consideration.

3) Architecturally, the building is harmonious both as a whole and with its neighbouring structures; it is "exceedingly well built, completely finished within and without, and has been well kept up. It should therefore require little maintenance to keep it in such condition."

4) People are moving back into the rural areas; although these small rural churches seem to be losing their congregations, the experience of other areas shows that eventually there will be a return to them. As such it would be short sighted to demolish now what might be needed in four or five years.

5) The architects estimate that St. Thomas could not be reproduced for less than $135,000. - but it could be maintained in good condition for less than $100.00 a year.

6) Vandalism - the fear of which brought the church elders to the decision to tear it down - is now more a danger than it has ever been, unless the church is kept in good condition.

7) To tear the church down needlessly would represent the undesirable destruction of a house of worship.

The architects report estimates that the amount of work required - about 30 person hours per year - for the upkeep of the church would be minimal. They suggest that occasional services in the summer months be held there as well as possibly parish picnics; they point out that not only the Marmora and Bonarlaw parishes, but also the Stirling parishes might become involved with the church.

District Heating Study Commissioned

Toronto - A second step towards the development of district heating systems for new communities was announced today by Energy Minister Reuben Baetz and Housing Minister Claude Bennett.

The ministers said in a joint release that they have commissioned a preliminary engineering study for a system to provide district heating for a community of about 20,000 persons, such as the first stage of the proposed community of North Pickering, northwest of Oshawa.

The design study follows a February, 1976, report for the Ministry of Energy which indicated there could be substantial savings in the use of a central system to provide heat to homes, industries, institutions and businesses in the new community.

Preliminary engineering studies for a central plant, distribution, metering and individual control systems are expected to be completed by late 1978. The studies will also compare the likely cost of a hot water district heating system with the cost of conventional heating systems.

"District heating has the potential for increased fuel efficiency, reduced costs to the consumer, and less pollution, as well as increased reliability and convenience," Energy Minister Baetz said.

"District heating systems in European cities have demonstrated these advantages," he said. "The extent to which they can be applied in Ontario is under study."

The contract for the $88,000 study has been awarded to H.H. Angus Ltd., a Toronto engineering consulting firm.

In comparing costs, the consultants will assume the use of fossil fuels to produce heat in the initial stage of development of the district heating system. In the later stage, they will assume the availability of hot water from the Pickering nuclear power plant. Such a system could be the first anywhere to use off-peak power generation from a nuclear station to provide heat on a permanent basis.

"A more detailed design plan would be required before actual construction," Housing Minister Bennett said. "But the results of this study will be useful wherever district heating might be applied."

The study will also investigate the possibility of using solar energy, garbage or heat pumps as sources of heat in a district heating system. It is being funded by the Ministry of Energy and co-ordinated by the Ministry of Housing.

Solar Market On Rise Study Says

Canadian demand for solar collectors will probably rise to $20 million annually by 1982 from current market demand of $3.4 million states a market survey sponsored by the Ontario Ministry of Industry and Tourism.

The survey, conducted by Middleton Associates, is intended to speed the development of a strong, domestic solar heating industry. By separating the demand for collectors into purchase groups, intended use and regions, the study presents market data for 1978-82 which can be used in sales projections by solar equipment manufacturers.

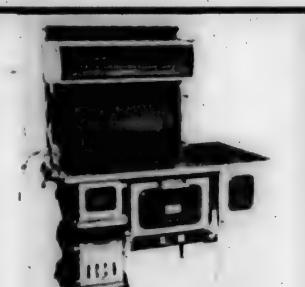

"The challenge of a lucrative market is there for Ontario business people," said John R. Rhodes, Ontario Minister of Industry and Tourism. "Even these figures may underestimate the potential. As impressive as they are, they reflect the assumption that the market will remain as it is now. Yet, it is not unreasonable to expect demand to soar even higher as the public becomes more aware of solar energy equipment and governments more active in encouraging its use."

The survey predicts the total Canadian non-pool market for collectors, including those for heating water, residential space and commercial space and for low grade industrial processes, will expand from $2,409,000 in 1978 to $13,646,000 (current dollars) in 1982.

The data is compiled by four regions: Atlantic, Central, Western and Northeastern United States. In Canada, the largest market for solar collectors is the central region (Ontario and Quebec) which now accounts for 85 per cent of all installations. The Northeastern U.S. represents an export market greater than six to eight times the total Canadian market.

In the appendices, the survey provides an analysis of factors influencing solar collector purchase decisions and the impact of possible government incentives on market demand.

The survey is available from the Government of Ontario Bookstore, 880 Bay Street, Toronto.

Senior Citizens have been cordially invited to use the Clubhouse, with "Games Day" on Friday afternoons. Everyone is welcome to come join our Lawn Bowling Club.

Asselstine - Masters Wedding

Trinity United Church Madoc was the scene of a lovely summer wedding on Saturday July 1st, 1978 when Valarie Jean, youngest daughter of Stan and Jean Asselstine of Madoc, became the bride of Robert John, son of Ruth and Claude Masters of Tweed.

A prelude medley of music with Mrs. Jean Baily at the organ and Paul Asselstine, youngest brother of the bride at the piano greeted the guests on their arrival. Rev. Gordon Adams presided at the double ring ceremony at 3:30 p.m. The dark-haired bride entered the Church on the arm of her father to the strains of 'Praise My Soul', radiant in a white sleeveless polyester satin gown with fitted bodice, stand up collar and flared skirt. The gown was accented by a beautiful chantilly lace elbow length cape. Her floor length veil trimmed with matching chantilly lace fell from a juliet cap of satin adorned with seed pearls. She carried a Bible made of olive tree wood, which she brought back from a trip to Jerusalem, beautifully decorated with Sonia Roses, white shasta daisies, with trailing ribbon and rosebuds. Her only jewellery was a diamond and pearl pendant worn by her maternal grandmother and her mother at their respective weddings.

Mrs. Myrna Pringle of Guelph was matron of honour. Mrs. Sheila Murphy of Napanee, sister of the bride and Miss Joan Donaldson of Millbride, were bridesmaids. The girls wore identical gowns of mint green polyester crepe with fitted bodice and shoe string straps, accented with co-ordinating floral chiffon jackets and matching drawstring belts. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Kim Murphy of Napanee, niece of the bride was gowned similarly in a floor length mint green polyester gown with flounce, the bodice and gathered sleeves were of floral chiffon to match the senior attendants. The girls all carried a single coral polyester rose. The petite flower girl Miss Sheri Murphy of Napanee, niece of the bride, was in a floor length mint green floral gown matching the other girls. Her flowers were a basket of white shasta daisies with a single sonia rose to match the brides bouquet. The groom wore a dark green tuxedo with satin lapels and a white carnation boutonniere. The best man was Mr. Terry Oliphant of Tweed, cousin of the groom. Mr. David Asselstine of Belleville, brother of the bride and Mr. Leonard Masters of Kingston brother of the groom were ushers. The men were dressed alike in dark green tuxedo's with satin lapels and mint green shirts to compliment the bridesmaids dresses. Paul Asselstine also acted as junior usher; he and the little ring bearer, Lenny Masters of Kingston, nephew of the groom wore suits with brown trousers and light beige jackets with brown bow ties. They all wore yellow carnation boutonnieres. After the first lesson, Mrs. Jean Baily, organist, accompanied by Miss Joan Donaldson, soloist, sang 'Whither Thou Goest' and after the blessing 'The Wedding Prayer'. The Master of Ceremonies at the reception at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre was Mr. Ross Fleming, a good friend of the bride.

The mother of the bride received the guests in a floor length polyester gown of deep coral with lace jacket. She wore a corsage of white gardenias and was assisted by the mother of the groom in a floor length powder blue chiffon gown with pink gardenia corsage. The three tiered wedding cake was trimmed with yellow roses, iridescent bells and love birds. It was made and decorated by the brides mother as were most of the attendants dresses. Following the reception approximately 200 people enjoyed dancing to the music of the 'Murphys Music Makers'. On behalf of the Madoc Centennial Committee, Mrs. Sheila Matchett, a guest at the dance presented the newlyweds with the first Centennial Marriage Certificate to be given out.

For travelling to the east coast the bride into a powder blue jumpsuit with a pink carnation corsage. The groom wore a powder blue leisure suit. The young couple now reside in Kingston where the bride is a Research Lab Technician at Kingston General Hospital and the groom works for Kingston Cablevision.

Before her marriage the bride to be was entertained at showers given in her honour by Mrs. Myrna Pringle at the home of her

Manpower Report

by DREW GUNSOLUS

The end of what appears to be a record summer for the Madoc (Centre Hastings) Student Manpower Office is drawing near. On July 26th, the Manpower Office will close its doors for the last time this year. This does not mean, however, that it is too late to hire a student. Employers especially in the Marmora area - are urged to call us in Madoc before the July 26th closing date. Anyone interested in hiring Centre Hastings and area students will be able to do so through the Belleville office until the end of August.

Picking up from last week's report then, students, like any other employee, are required to work safely. Further, if a student suffers an injury, however slight, they are required to report it immediately. If dangerous working conditions exist, any employee should report them to their supervisor and, if corrective action is not taken promptly, the nearest Ministry of Labour should be notified immediately. (Kingston, 542-2853)

The law forbids employers to discipline employees for seeking enforcement of the safety legislation and employers are subject to substantial penalties if a conviction is obtained in court. These safety laws exist to protect employees, however common sense and safe work practices on the job are the best assurances against unnecessary injury or death. Employees and employers should work

Anglers Vie For Molson Big Fish Prizes

Out of province anglers currently hold down top spot in 4 separate categories in the "Molson's" Big Fish Contest operated by the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. Ontario residents lead 3 categories and 2 divisions, largemouth bass and salmon, still have no entries.

Biggest fish of the contest to date is a lake trout which strained the scales to 40 pounds 9 1/2 ounces. Lake of the Woods produced the monster for Ted Vardalas of Winnipeg, Manitoba.

The top 15 entries in each of the nine categories win Molson's cash prizes while all entries over specified weights earn Molson's Honour Certificates. So far most categories have very few entries.

The only bass entry, a smallmouth weight, 5 pounds 12 ounces and was caught in Lower Beverley Lake by Claudine Fuhrman of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

Sue Burkey of Hartville, Ohio, took her leading 15 pound 3 ounce walleye from Georgian Bay while Jeffrey Reagan of West Allis, Wisconsin took his 25 1/2 pound pike from Bloodvein Lake.

Ontario residents currently lead the maskinonge, brook trout, and rainbow trout categories. Sioux Lookout angler, John Kressall took his 38 pound muskie from nearby Lac Seul. Dick Faccia of Thunder Bay took his 7 pound 3 1/2 ounce brookie from the faithful Nipigon River. Harold Gross of Wasaga Beach coaxed his 20 pound rainbow out of the Nottawasaga River.

Contest administrators state that many fish eligible for cash prizes have not been entered. "We can't understand it. With 15 prizes available in each category we should have a lot more entries". Fish caught up to November 30, 1978 are eligible.

Free Entry forms for the $4500 competition are available at most fishing tackle shops, lodges, or direct from the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, Box 28, Peterborough, K9J 6Y5. The OFAH is a 50 year old conservation organization of 18,000 members.

What To Do With Plants

Your vacation plans are almost complete. You are wondering what to do with the houseplants you've pampered all year.

Burke McNeill, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food extension horticulturist, says there are a number of solutions to your plant sitting problems.

The best solution is to find an accommodating neighbor to water the plants while you are away. If you are fortunate enough to find such a plant sitter, leave watering instructions, especially if the person is inexperienced with plants. "It doesn't take long to kill a plant by over-watering," he says.

Another solution is to put the plants in about two inches of water in the bathtub or kitchen sink. If there is no natural light in the room it is advisable to leave a light on. Using this method, Mr. McNeill says plants can survive for about two weeks.

You can also make your own automatic watering system using clear plastic bags. First water the plants thoroughly and insert two stakes, slightly taller than the plant, into each pot. Put the bag over the top of the plant and fasten to the pot rim with a rubber band. This will allow water condensing inside the bag to drain down into the soil.

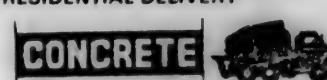

Mr. McNeill says once in the bags, the plants should be set in a cool spot away from direct sunlight. This will provide an ideal environment for houseplants for about two weeks. However, this method is not recommended for soft plants, such as fibrous begonias. This type of plant may rot because of excess moisture.

For longer vacations, there are several automatic watering devices available at garden centers and other plant outlets. In some of Ontario's larger centers, professional plant sitters are available for hire to care for your prized houseplants.

Saddle Your Dreams

With Naomi Wakan

Please be sure to include brief details of the day on which you had your dream as they may be a clue as to what has triggered it.

Dear Naomi Wakan,

I had been worried during the day about the lack of control I seemed to have over various things in my life. I dreamed that night of my mother and father who had been dead almost 20 years and never before had I dreamed of them. They met me on a corner and my father spoke sternly saying that the people who had been wanting me to go to a dance in order to judge my dancing ability were really going to murder me. Then they both turned and walked away without smiling. I thought "I can avoid being murdered by not going to the dance, but these people may get me somewhere else". I was surprised to learn that they dislike me as I had trusted them as friends.

Suggested Interpretation: It's true, these people will get you somewhere else so you might as well go to the dance. These people may be a part of yourself that you had thought was useful and helpful to your growth. Perhaps this part of you, instead of being constructively critical, has been too stern a judge and has destroyed perhaps a part of your joyful nature or creativity. Your father is right in pointing this part of you out, but you are also right in that it has to be recognised and dealt with and there is no way of avoiding it. It is good to be gentle with oneself and also to be critical, you need both but if you lose balance and become too critical or too indulgent then of course you are going to feel out of control. So many people ask me about seeing dead relatives in dreams and fear it means that they or someone else is going to die. I feel these people come back because they were helpful to us when they were alive and when we need this kind of help, we bring the memories of these people and what they can teach us back.

Dear Mrs. Wakan,

I feel I have just come through a major turning point in my life and am feeling quite happy about my new found independence and initiative. I had a dream in which there was a little girl behaving quite badly. Her mother and another woman were there and they were saying how awful she was. I couldn't help but agree, she was an awful child.

However, the child, who was being bathed by the two women, got away from them and began running around playing. She was very beautiful and quite joyous and I thought that it was the women and not the child who were the root of the child's misbehaviour.

The following night I had a dream where my mother was taking something away from me and I was screaming at her "You've taken everything from me and you'll not take this."

Mr. N.

Suggested Interpretation: Both dreams are connected of course. The general rule is that all dreams in one night, however disparate or close together always concern the same subject. So here we are concerned with something you felt that your mother has taken away from you. Whether she actually has or not doesn't matter, it's that you feel she has. In the first part of the dream you have a common scene, the parent puts the child down in front of another person and either the child is ashamed and inhibits its "bad" behaviour or else it becomes even naughtier: "If she says I am awful then I will be awful". But in the second part of the dream when the child breaks free she was joyous. A free child and a free human being will naturally be good and wholesome because there is no reason to be otherwise. You might say "Was I that little girl?" and one would say "Yes". She probably represents what is called your anima - your qualities - creativity, intuition, feeling etc. Whatever our sex, we should have a good balance inside of us of strong (male) and receptive (female) qualities. Men who have been my patients always seem concerned that they are not putting out "macho". But a real man is a real human being and is in touch with his tender feelings just as much as his muscles.

You specialize in farming. Case specializes in tractors. We both know it pays.

This is the era of specialization. And for good reason. Economics. It gets tougher every year to make a profit. With that in mind, the choice quickly becomes whether or not an individual—or company—should try to do many things adequately. Or do a few things expertly. That's why, in 1972, Case chose to specialize in tractors. The broad farm equipment business was left to others.

Get a rugged Case Agri-King tractor. There's a rig to match your tough field schedule.

Among other things, specialization means matching the power to the job. Too much power is wasteful. Too little, useless.

There's a Case Agri-King, however, that's a perfect match for almost every job.

Depending on the power you select, you get these Case special features.

KIDSWEEKEND

Madoc was in the hands of the children this weekend. There were events for the children to participate in, shows and displays for them to watch, and opportunities for them to exhibit what they know and what they can do and to just simply enjoy themselves.

From the soap box derby on Friday morning until the mutt show ended on Sunday afternoon, there was no let up in the excitement of the weekend. Almost everything seemed to be carried out in a true spirit of fun and even the competitive events - sometimes especially the competitive events went off in a spirit of good will with a maximum of enjoyment and a minimum of trouble.

Things kicked off on Friday with the Soap Box Derby. Although the winning machine was built by a Marmora boy (Todd Bonter) it was driven to its four victories by Rob Stevenson of Madoc.

Friday afternoon saw the skateboard contest on Durham St. North. In the novice event Lenny Hyde won both the slalom and distance event. Steven Bancroft and Lisa Tarrant participated in both and Krista Bancroft tried her hand at the slalom. A dog coming across the course at a key moment also helped to decide the second races outcome. Todd Kirkwood and Keith Moriarity took the professional races.

Friday evening was the magic night and three magicians and a very versatile and somewhat oversized rabbit helped entertain a large crowd at the Kiwanis Centre. There was an awful lot of materializing and disappearing done but the audience stayed riveted to their seats throughout the show. Later another show - an impressive fireworks display took place at the ball park.

Ecumenical Community Service

The Ministerial Association is pleased to have been asked by Madoc's Centennial Committee to head up an Ecumenical Community Service of Worship at the beginning of our homecoming weekend.

To this end we have planned to invite the Community to come to Trinity United Church on Sunday evening August 6th at 7:30 A Community Choir is planned and there will be lots of singing. We are to be honoured by a visit from the Reverend President of the United Church's Bay of Quinte Conference - the youngest man ever to hold this position. Our theme is to be "Celebrating God's Presence in Madoc - past and present" and we plan that this is what the service will be - a celebration.

We believe that what we are doing on this particular Sunday evening is the kind of thing that Madoc would have done one hundred years ago. Those were days when people felt free to express their faith openly. No celebration would have been conceivable without the participation of the

The Madoc Figure Skating Club wishes to thank all those who helped make the Fun Fair at the ball park on Saturday such a success. David and Leonard Hall of Tweed donated the pony, and the pony rides were one of the big hits of the fair. Bob Henderson and Brian Lovegrove also gave great support to the fair.

The draw for 42" kangaroo was won by Lorraine Terene of Willowdale. It was delivered to Lorraine at Pitts Landing where she is vacationing.

Peace Park Celebrations

Rev. Canon J.H. Thompson of St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, Ontario conducted the 12th Annual Peace Park Memorial Service in St. John's United Church, Tweed on Saturday, July 15th at 3 p.m.

As part of the service Dr. George Ignatieff, Provost of Trinity College in the University of Toronto and former Canadian United Nations Ambassador received the annual Man of the Year Peace Award granted by the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park Committed to the Canadian citizen who, in the previous years, has made the most outstanding contribution to World Peace and/or Canadian Unity. The award was presented to Dr. Ignatieff by Roy Cadwell, Chairman of the Peace Park.

Nominees for the annual award are selected by the Editors of Canada's leading newspapers and Maclean's. Dr. Ignatieff was sponsored by Mr. Roger Lemelin, Editor la Presse. At the service Friends of the Peace Park Awards presented to Maryon E. Pearson, wife of the late Lester B. Pearson, after whom the park is named, A.O. Foster, Charles Bates, A.E. Robinson, John G. Fargey, Eugene R. Laliberte, Carl Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Johnson and Charles Andrew Tupper on, the parents all enjoyed the mutt show, and for that matter the whole weekend.

CHSS gets new brickwork for $70,000; faulty bricks, laying suspected

The Centre Hastings Secondary School, not yet ten years old, is undergoing extensive repairs to the brickwork that will end up costing tax payers $70,000.

Most of the brick on the building is being replaced because the brick has deteriorated severely over the past few years to the point where it was actually becoming "hazardous" according to Hastings County Board of Education Trustee Tom Burnside.

"It had reached the point where we were afraid a window was going to fall out. It had become that dangerous," Mr. Burnside said.

Responsibility for the deterioration of the brick has not been pinpointed - and isn't likely to be, but according to Mr. Burnside, the fault is likely with the manufacturing of the bricks or with the way they were laid.

"This has been an ongoing debate for some years now. It involves the architect, the contractor, a sub-contractor and the supplier and no-one wants to take the blame. The supplier says that it is due to faulty brick-laying; the sub-contractor claims that the brick was to blame, which appears to me to be the case. However no-one has ever actually admitted the blame." Mr. Burnside said that there was no sign of the defect when the school was first built and that the architect and the school board approved the work.

"Now some of the parties involved have gone out of business. They're no longer available."

Mr. Burnside said that the conditions of the brick at the school had been a budget priority "for a number of years," but that up until the present it had not been possible to carry out the repair.

While acknowledging that the expenditure was high, Mr. Burnside noted that costs had been reduced somewhat because the work was being done at cost. "It's a bloody shame but there doesn't appear to be any recourse."

Mr. Lyle Deaire, of the board's works department indicated that the work had been tendered but that materials for the work had been obtained at cost. There is a different contractor doing the work this time.

Cloyne Couple Receive Red Cross Medals

The Canadian Red Cross Society and citizens of Cloyne and surrounding area honoured Barbara and John Lester on Thurs. July 13, at the Barrie Township Hall, Cloyne. In recognition of their many years of service to the community as founders and directors of the Northern Emergency Organization, Gordon Krueger, Red Cross director of First Aid Services, Toronto, and Tony Tyrrell, Red Cross regional examiner, Belleville, presented Barbara and John Lester with Red Cross medals and service awards.

The Red Cross citations acknowledge the Lesters' dedicated voluntary service to the Canadian Red Cross Society and whose outstanding leadership and participation have greatly assisted the Society in its humanitarian activities.

In attendance to honour the Lesters and their organization were Tom Neal, Reeve of Barrie Township, Nancy Cannon, Clerk of Barrie Township, who chaired the meeting, Roy Holtzauer, Deputy Reeve of Kaladar, Anglesea and Effingham Townships, Ron Vastokas, Liberal candidate for the federal riding, Helen Corcoran, representing J. Earl McEwen, Liberal MPP, and members of many community organizations.

Gordon Krueger explained to those present that the Northern Emergency Organization is one of only two volunteer first aid units in the province and that the Cloyne area population has more trained first aiders than most larger centres. Since 1966, when the Northern Emergency Organization was formed, squad members have responded to medical emergency and accident calls from Kaladar to Denbigh.

Ellis blasts Liberal for "disgraceful, personal attack"

Jack Ellis MP

Before this session of Parliament came to a close at the end of June, I witnessed in the Commons Chamber, what I considered to be a disgraceful, unparliamentary, personal attack on a member of the official opposition by a member of the Trudeau Cabinet.

The Honourable Andre Ouellet, acting in a most un-honourable fashion, as is his habit, launched a barrage of accusations against a Progressive Conservative M.P. - Elmer MacKay, saying he was hostile towards the French Canadians and their interests. This untruthful remark was sparked when MacKay questioned possible Liberal improprieties surrounding the multi-million dollar construction of Government buildings taking place in Hull, Quebec.

Mr. Ouellet has been well and long known for his tendency to run off at the trough - that is, pass opinions and judgements on others when their actions were not to his personal liking. The "Judge's Affair" belonged to Andre Ouellette. He criticized a supreme court judge at the time, and said his decision was "stupid" in front of television cameras and microphones. For this, the Minister of Urban Affairs was cited for contempt of court and found guilty.

In the House of Commons on June 29th, the day before adjournment he attacked Mr. MacKay in such a way as to provoke my colleague to object to the Chair on a Question of Privilege and request a ruling on the acceptability of such accusations by Mr. Speaker.

The following day, the Speaker, after reviewing what was recorded in Hansard, told Mr. Ouellet to withdraw the remarks he had made about Mr. MacKay. The Chair also gave the Minister an opportunity to apologize for the unfortunate comments gracefully and without making a scene.

However, the Minister deliberately disobeyed the Speaker several times, jumping to his feet to hurl more insults each time the withdrawal was requested. Finally, and clearly at the end of his patience, Mr. Speaker demanded an apology and stated that if there was no apology he would be forced to follow another course of action - probably to have Mr. Ouellet removed from the House.

Only at that point did the Minister grudgingly and sullenly withdraw his comments, and without apologizing to the Member whom he had offended, shouted that MacKay was as inconsequential and petty an individual as the House had ever known.

Later in the afternoon, during our adjournment debate, and when Elmer MacKay was not available to be in the Chamber, Ouellette, speaking completely off topic, returned to earlier allegations, and in different words repeated his accusations to the obvious shock and disgust of most members in the House at the time.

This type of incident and the despicable attitude is symptomatic of one of the problems with the Government in Ottawa today. It has consistently shown a basic disregard and disrespect for the elected Members of Parliament and their constituents. Such government, forced to hide behind the skirts of Quebec Nationalism to justify their shortcomings and mistakes will not be kept in office for long.

Elizabeth Franklin received her sales master award from Charles Deacon and the Gardener Stevenson received his sales master award from Charles Deacon the General Motors district manager on 19 July 1978. He received his sales master plaque and a tie pin.

Harold Baker received his sales master award from Charles Deacon the General Motors district manager on 19 July 1978. The unique part about Harold is he achieved enough sales in seven months to qualify for this award. He received his sales master plaque, and a tie pin.

Danny Jones received his grand master award, which is the highest possible award to receive for sales from Charles Deacon, the General Motors district manager, on 19 July 1978. He received his grand master plaque and a silver tray. Bob Sills received his grand master award, which is the highest possible award to receive for sales from Charles Deacon the General Motors district manager on 19 July 1978. He received his grand master plaque and pin and a gold watch with his name engraved.

There was no sleeping in on Saturday morning as the playground opening took place at 10:00 a.m., followed by the panning for gold. The remainder of the day was spent in variety of activities - there was hobby, craft and model show at the Anglican Parish Hall, an RCMP display at the Orange Lodge (a proposed exotic snake and bird display didn't materialize), a fun fair and a ball tournament at the ball park.

The day ended with June Eikard and Lori Allen and the Happy Wanderers performing at the street dance amidst occasional showers.

Mr. Gord Lebow of R.R.4 Madoc was the winner of the trip to the Grand Bahamas.

Sunday things got underway a bit later with a parade in the afternoon. Cartoon characters, clowns, floats and a number of other highlights - including children with decorated bicycles marched from the Kiwanis Centre to the ballpark on a windy, cloudy afternoon.

Following the parade was the weekend's highlight - the popular mutt show sponsored by Shur-Gain. Dogs of every description turned out accompanied by their young masters, to compete for eight different prizes.

Most baby birds have a hard little knob at the end of their beaks called an egg tooth, according to The World Book Encyclopedia. They use the knob to crack the shell of the egg so they can wriggle out.

Hastings Twilight Meeting

Dairy Princess Tina Jogganotter

by ARDITH MCKINNON
Sunny skies and hot, dry weather allowed ideal conditions for the annual Hastings County Holstein Twilight Meeting held last Tuesday evening, July 18th, at the Ralanes Farm, owned by Ted and Loie Ray and family of R.R.2 Roslin.

Approximately five-hundred people were in attendance for a chicken dinner beginning at 6:30 p.m. The modern well-kept farm and grounds provided a pleasant setting which was accented with music by Rythm Machine. The agenda for the evening commenced with the judging of six Holstein cows owned by the Ray family.

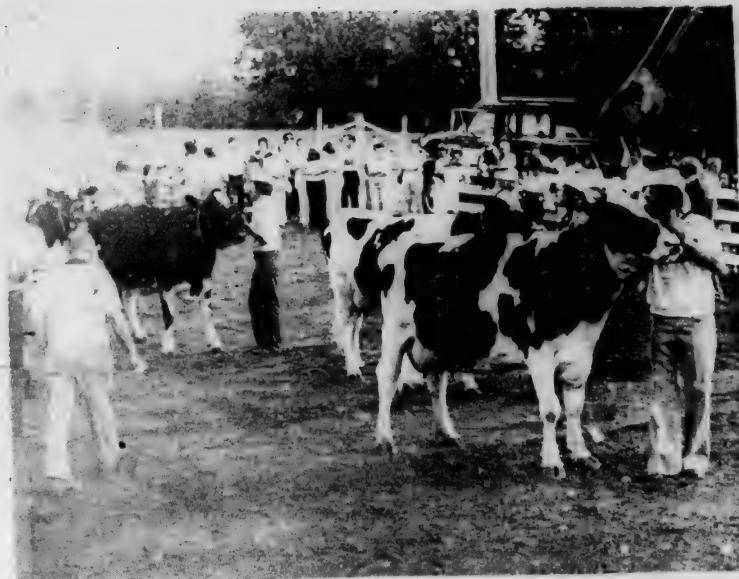

Prizes for best judging were presented by Tina Jogganotter, (Hastings Dairy Princess) and were donated by Harvestore Silos, Diversey Co., Ken Little of Tweed, Doug Bailey and Sons, Summers and Sons of Tweed, Don Browns from Hoard's Station, Cannifton Garage, Chisholm's of Roslin and Sarles Farm Automation.

Chairman for the evening was Harry Danford. Ted Ray welcomed everyone to the farm, after which Jack Ellis M.P. and George Hees M.P. made brief addresses. Raeburn Robinson, chairman of the Milk Committee introduced the guest speaker Dr. K.A. McEwen, Chairman of the Ontario Milk Commission. Dr. McEwen was a native of Grey County and attended Guelph University.

Dr. McEwen's speech detailed the functions of the Ontario Milk Commission. Five government appointed persons, for a one to three year period, meet in Toronto to hear problems from local board members. One of these people is Robin Jeffrey of Belleville who acts as Consumer Representative.

The Commission was established in 1965 to ensure that set quotas and prices could be appealed by local board members, to organize research projects on dairying, and to manage the supply of milk being produced in Canada by setting a provincial quota allotment. Andy Jogganotter presented Dr. McEwen with a gift. Music was again enjoyed by the Rythm Machine Band. Following this interval Tin Jogganotter, Hastings County Dairy Princess, spoke and was presented with a corsage by Leanne Hall. Speeches were then made by Gordon Parks of Prince Edward County, Director of Holstein Friesian, by Allan Ketcheson, local representative of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, and by Dave Houch, Holstein Director from Western Ontario. Clare Treverton presented the Ray family with a plaque and gift certificate.

Door prizes were drawn for and donated by Foxboro Co-Op, Madoc Co-Op, Stirling Machine, Bert Jones Garage, De Laval by Guerney, Alton Hadley, Groves Saddlery, Cannifton Garage, Harvestore Silos and Sarles Farm Automation.

churches and their clergy. This is still true to a degree for a large number of our citizens. One thing is different now. One hundred years ago it would have been impossible to have had an ecumenical service. In no way could Methodists and Presbyterians have gathered to worship amicably together. Nor could Anglicans and non-conformists have come together with the same thing in mind. Then can you imagine what would have celebrated - but separately. Today we can worship together and do so with sincerity and truth. We've come a long way since 1878.

In another way we are like the folk of 1878. By inviting the President of the Bay of Quinte Conference we have done what all the churches would have done a century ago. Then any occasion was unthinkable without ecclesiastical dignitaries. The Methodists would certainly have wanted their president, the Anglicans and Roman Catholics their bishops. It was natural for us, then, to invite at least one outstanding person from one of our denominations. Our invitation happens to have been accepted by the Rev. Harold Wilson of the United Church and we are all glad that he can come.

All your pastors wish to take this opportunity of giving thanks to God for the opportunity of serving Him in your midst. You have a knack of making us feel very much at home. We are very happy therefore, to be able to say that we are celebrating not your, but our Centennial. We welcome the opportunity which you give us to pray for God's continued blessing on this Community.

Hart's-Riggs Institute Takes Trip To Perth

On Wednesday, July 19 thirty-three women boarded a bus driven by Beryl Bateham and went to Lanark and Perth for the day.

At Lanark an employee took us on an excellent tour of the Glenayr Kitten Factory which has around one hundred and thirty workers, mostly women. This was followed by a shopping "spree" at the Glenayr Kitten Store.

After lunch in downtown Perth, it was discovered that two of our passengers were missing, and must have been left up at Lanark over two hours ago. Thanks to the people at Lanark they were soon located and back on the bus.

Next came the tour of Perth by bus with tour guide from the Chamber of Commerce.

The history and scenery of Perth, were excellent. Perth, in Lanark County, was founded by some pioneer Scotsmen in 1816; as the area was given Scottish names. Scotland, and as is natural, the river by which the town stands took its name after the Tay in Scotland. Irish, English and French also emigrated to Perth.

Perth was chosen as a military settlement after the War of 1812 because it was a safe distance from the American border. The first settlers came in April, 1816, and by August of the same year there was a population of 2000. At present the population is 600 people in town, but they service 25,000 people the year round.

Perth's information bureau is in the shape of a Mammoth Cheese. In 1893 the world's largest cheese was made by the many cheese factories operating then in Eastern Ontario, and sent to Chicago to the World's Fair. This cheese was 18 feet around, 6 feet high and weighed 22,000 pounds. It took three days' milk from 10,000 cows to make it. The greatest part of this cheese found its way to the dining tables in London, England.

The tour took us by several very old stone buildings and houses. We noted that the oldest stone house in Perth was well preserved.

Perth has the oldest Town Band in Ontario and it was formed in 1867. The Town Hall was built in 1864 for $70,000 and was renovated in 1971 at a cost of $250,000.

The factories we saw in Perth included: Brown Shoe Co., International Scissor Co., Yarnetex, Jergens, Rogers Plating Factory and Heritage Silver Smith Factory. Our last stop was to the new Heritage Silver outlet Store in downtown Perth.

We arrived home around 6 p.m. Thanks to Linda Watson and the Institute for planning a fine day out.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ringelmann from Hamburg, West Germany, arrived in Canada July 7th to spend a month with his brother Hans, Margaret and family of R.R.5. Harold was just here a few days when he had the misfortune to fall and break his ankle.

Mr. Crichton Harrop with his daughter Siobhan have returned home after participating in an around the Lake Friendship Tour with 28 cyclists of all walks of life taking part. They started on July 3rd. With a total of 750 miles behind them, they arrived home on July 16th. They had only one rest day.

Ten girls representing the Madoc TOPS Club left on Thursday morning to attend the three day IRD Convention in Montreal. They were: Connie Armstrong, Betty Treverton, Lynda York, Marianne Burris, Glenny Lee, Irene Empey, Shirley Courtney, Cindy Toms, Getha Burns and Jean Asselstine.

Correction from July 12th Issue: Mrs.

Isobel Simmons, Mrs. M. Willman and Mr. Ralph Northey attended the graduation of Tom Northey from Glendon College, York University Toronto, recently. (Not Mrs. Ralph Northey as previously mentioned.)

Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fitzgerald spent a few days recently on a fishing trip to Long Lac.

Anna McKinnon R.R.2, Madoc spent the past three weeks on a motor trip to Michigan and Florida with Tamsin Douglas and her parents, of Madoc.

Mary and Irvine Ambler, Winona Palmer of Peterborough, Doris and Gerald Wiley of Frankford and Kevin Wiley of Napanee, spent Sunday with their sister Madeline and her husband Don McKinnon of R.R.2 Madoc.

Miss Ann McKinnon, piano student of Mrs. Carolyn Mack of Madoc received honours in her Grade 6 Conservatory Exam.

Solar Heating Tests

TORONTO - The Ontario Ministry of Energy and the Town of Richmond Hill have agreed to install and monitor solar energy equipment to heat the Richvale Community Centre outdoor swimming pool in Richmond Hill.

The pool will be the first public swimming pool in Ontario where solar technology will be monitored for the Energy Ministry to determine its efficiency, performance and cost.

Although solar systems for backyard pools are no longer a rarity the technology has not been tested for public pools, Energy Minister Reuben Baetz said. "Many pool owners maintain fuel consumption records. But a technical and economic evaluation of a solar system requires specialized monitoring equipment and the investment of time to analyze the data collected."

"That is where my Ministry can help," he said. "Ultimately we hope to be able to give municipalities, non-profit groups and others who operate public pools the findings based on hard data to incorporate in their assessment of whether solar equipment is a wise investment for their particular circumstances."

"We hope that the findings will also be useful to owners of backyard pools."

The agreement between the Province and the Town of Richmond Hill to jointly fund the project follows a feasibility study of three potential sites by Okins, Leipziger, Cuplinskas, Kaminker and Associates Ltd., consulting engineers of Toronto, for the Ministry of Energy.

The consultants examined the outdoor Richvale pool, the Lions outdoor pool in Oakville and an indoor Y.W.C.A. pool in Hamilton. The Richvale pool was recommended as the site for a solar demonstration based on economic comparisons.

A major factor favoring the Richvale site was the finding that relatively inexpensive unglazed plastic collectors to be installed there could perform as well as glazed metal collectors during summer months.

The consultants also recommended the use of a pool cover at the Richvale pool. Richmond Hill Town Council has instructed staff to investigate the use of a cover.

TOPS Celebrates 30th Birthday with International Recognition Day

July 20th, 21st, 22nd, saw more than 5,000 people from all over the world, at the Montreal Forum to celebrate the 30th birthday of Tops Inc.

At 7:00 p.m. on Thursday evening a special ceremony in tribute to the founder of Tops, Esther S. Manz took place, with the Melotones: Tops Ontario Singers under the direction of Flo Anna Clark taking part. The entertainment for the evening was the Mountain City Chorus of Montreal. On Friday morning Dr. Ronald Kalkhoff, Director of Tops Club Inc., Obesity and Metabolic Research program, spoke on the hazards of overeating and the liquid protein diet. He stressed the point of a well balanced, three meal a day program, low in calorie intake. Friday evening brought the KOPS Graduation with the address by Claude Tatafrica and a solo by Fernande Anthony. The evening ended in a blaze of colour with the lights being turned down the Graduating KOP, Re-instated KOPS and Royalty forming a complete circle around the Forum with candles.

Saturday morning the 1978 King and Queen were crowned. The International Queen was Ruby Hollis of Penwell, Texas, her original weight was 304 lbs. her goal weight 150 lbs., her total weight loss 154 lbs.

The International King was Bernard Gowell of Lincolnwood, Illinois, his original weight was 373 lbs., his goal weight 220 lbs. with a total weight loss of 153 lbs. The next International Recognition Day Convention will be held on July 5, 6 and 7 1979 in St. Louis Missouri.

PET COLUMN

This English Corgi is owned by Connie and Annette Francis, St. Lawrence Street, in the Village of Madoc. She came to them in the early part of 1971 as a stray and has been named "Dog". She's blonde in colour and is very good natured. The only time she can't be found is during a thunderstorm, when she makes her escape under a bed.

Manpower Report

by DREW S. GUNSOLUS

Over the past ten weeks since our opening on May 24th, I have attempted to supply Centre Hastings area employers and students with numerous employment facts and related points of interest. This, my final report prior to the July 26th closing of the Centre Hastings Canada Manpower Centre for Students, will review many of the topics discussed in earlier issues.

The Ontario minimum wage for students working in general industry is $2.15 an hour. This applies to students under 18 who work 28 hours or less in a week or during school holidays. A student 18 years or over must be paid the minimum rate of $2.65 per hour increasing to $2.85 per hour, August 1, 1978 and $3.00 per hour, January 1, 1979. Student rates do not apply to students working in the construction industry. They must be paid at least $2.90 per hour increasing to $3.15 August 1, 1978 and $3.25 per hour January 1, 1979. The minimum hourly rate for an employee who serves liquor directly to a customer in any place for which a license or in a place for which a permit has been issued under the Liquor Licence Act shall be $2.50 per hour.

Men and women must be paid equal rates for equal work. Differentials in wages are permitted if they are based on such factors as seniority, merit or quantity or quality of work. Differential wage rates may not be based solely on the sex of any worker.

In construction, a student must be at least 16 years old before they are able to work legally. In general industry the minimum age required is 15 years, while 14 years is the minimum age required in shops or offices. Young people of 14 and 15 may not be employed during a regular school day.

Employers who require more than 48 hours work a week must obtain a permit from the director of the Employment Standards Branch of the Ministry. Students in general industry must be paid at the rate of 1 1/2 times their regular rate for all hours in excess of 44 in a week.

Student employees may claim exemption from income tax deductions at source by filing a T.D.1 form, supplied by the employer. It must certify that their earnings for the year will not exceed the basic exemption.

Finally, and I think most importantly, on-the-job safety in Ontario is a joint responsibility of workers and management. Employers are required to operate in compliance with the safety legislation and employees are required to work in a safe manner at all times so that they do not risk injuring themselves or fellow workers. We hear of many on-the-job accidents each summer and with safety instructions relating to their specific jobs in order to reduce likelihood of such injury.

And so, I come to the end of our series of discussions. I hope that many of you found them to be beneficial in some way. Next week, statistics concerning the number of students placed in jobs in the Centre Hastings area will be released. I think that you will find them to be rather favourable in comparison to last summer which was our first year in Madoc.

Now, just because the Madoc office will be closing July 26th, does not mean that you will be unable to hire students through us. All Marmora-Madoc-Tweed area employers will be able to hire Centre Hastings students by calling Belleville, 962-2586. (Monday through Friday, 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m.) And for one last time, remember this summer and every summer, Hire-A-Student!

SPORTS NEWS AND VIEWS

Minute Men Make Successful Showing at Grafton

The Madoc Intermediate Ball Club travelled to Grafton to defend their title in a ball tournament July 22 and 23. Madoc had won the tournament last year, but was beaten out in the semi-finals this time around.

Port Perry 5 - Madoc 0

Madoc's first game was at 10:30 Saturday morning. The local team ran into an overpowering pitcher on the mound for Port Perry who time and again mowed down the Madoc batters. Bob Willemsen took the loss for the Madoc squad. However, tournament officials discovered that the Port Perry pitcher was ineligible for this tournament and therefore forfeited the game to Madoc putting them in the "A" Division with all other winning teams.

Madoc 12 - Cobourg Lyle's 2

This game was controlled by the Madoc pitcher, Ted Sexsmith, from the beginning.

Ted struck out the first seven batters he faced and the Madoc batters provided much power in support of Ted in gaining this victory.

Madoc 2 - Northam 1

Saturday proved to be costly to the Madoc team as their regular catcher, Harold Bailey, took sick with the flu and could no longer participate in the tournament. Fortunately, Ron and Wayne Andrews, from Springbrook, had been signed for this tournament to bolster the team. With Wayne pitching and Ron catching, this turned out to be one of the most exciting games of the tournament and at the end of the regulation seven innings the score was tied 1 - 1.

In the Northam 7th inning the lead-off batter tripled and then raced for home on an easily-hit ground ball to shortstop. Clayton Whiteman grabbed the ball and threw to home base where Ron Andrews caught the ball, blocked the plate, and tagged the runner out forcing extra innings.

Madoc had a runner, Bob Willemsen, tagged out a home base in the eighth. In Northam's half of the eighth inning the lead-off batter singled. With one out the next batter hit a slicing drive deep to right field. The runner at the first was off and running as the ball seemed past the fielder. Somehow Charlie Wannamaker made a spectacular catch in the outfield, then threw to first to double off the runner there, and save the game.

In the ninth inning, it was Charlie Wannamaker who won the game with a sharp single scoring Sonny Osborne (who had singled and stolen second) with the winning run.

Notable mention has to go to Ron and Wayne Andrews who played very well. Wayne pitched a fine game and Ron did an equally fine job catching.

Trenton Swamp 2 - Madoc 6

The win over Northam sent Madoc to the semi-finals of the A division. A fine pitching performance by Ted Sexsmith was blotted by two unearned runs as the elimination of Madoc from further play by Trenton Swamp by a score of 2 - 0. For reaching the semi-finals Madoc received $50. which was used towards supper for the team on the way home.

It was a good tournament and a good time for all members of the team as they enjoyed the summer atmosphere and surrounding of the Shelter Valley Park for the two days.

Congratulations to the team and a special thank you to Ron and Wayne Andrews for their contribution to the Madoc Club. Also, much thanks to Mr. Earl Helps for his assistance to the team while in Grafton.

New Postal

Stationery and Stamp

Booklets

OTTAWA -- The Honourable J. Gilles Lamontagne, Postmaster General, announced recently that new postal stationery and stamp booklets will go on sale this month.

A new 30-cent aerogramme featuring a colour photograph of an Arctic sky will replace the 25-cent "Prairie Sky" pictured on the 1977 aerogramme. A minor change in the shape of the glued portion of the stationery has been made to facilitate opening.

Pre-stamped 14-cent envelopes will also be issued in both the personal stationery and business sizes. The selling price of an envelope is three cents more than the postage it bears. Twelve-cent pre-stamped envelopes will continue to be available to accommodate the new third-class rate.

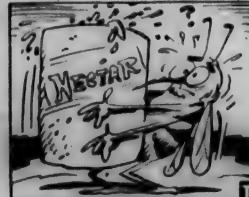

Stamped postcards will also be available for the first-class rate. The selling price is two cents above the face value. The indicia design first developed by Brian Fisher for the 1975 stationery issue was retained because it inhibits counterfeiting. This year the colour combination is purple and blue.

A new set of 50-cent stamp booklets, containing three 14-cent stamps of the Queen Elizabeth letter-rate definitive stamp and four two-cent stamps of the wildflower issue featuring the western columbine, will also be available.

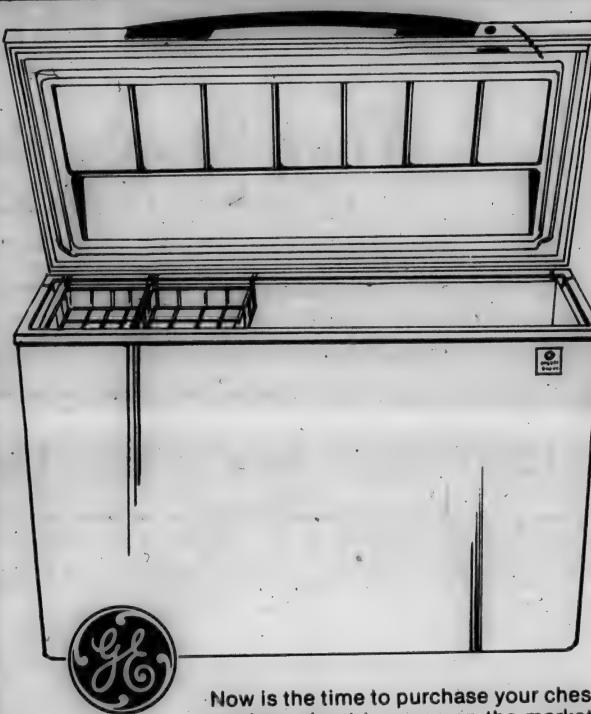

Following a practice introduced in 1972, these booklets feature 10 different pictorial over designs. This series is intended to complement the low-value definitive stamps depicting flowers and trees. Nine of the booklet covers show a more detailed view of the six flowers and three trees on the low-value definitive stamps. The tenth cover shows drawings of plants used as heraldic emblems, to correspond with the letter-rate stamps featuring a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II. The back cover carries a text describing the plant illustrated on the front cover.

These booklet covers are printed in dark green on ivory stock, which has been pre-printed with a 'safety' motif, and are the work of Heather Cooper, who also designed the definitive stamps.

Intended primarily for sale in vending machines, these 50-cent booklets are available in sets of 10 or singly (random selection) from the Philatelic Mail Order Service in Ottawa, or from philatelic outlets in selected post offices across the country.

Rompin' Ronnie Hawkins

by ETHAN HERBERMAN

"Everyone dreams of the big time," said Ronnie Hawkins on the first of a two day interview which sandwiched the announcement of his million dollar contract.

"Everyone dream of the big money, big times. I do. Everyone does. If they say they aren't, they're lying."

That was last Wednesday. And in Hawkins' case the dream went like this for himself and his six man group:

"I would like to be in a position to take three months off a year and create," he had said. I would like to have a record company which would give us enough money to create our own matter for an album, promote it properly and play it all over the world."

Reality was, of course, different. Hawkins was playing weeknights at the Belleville Four Seasons. The next stop was a bar in Toronto's east end. "Trouble shooting," he confessed - filling scheduling gaps.

They would be in the midst of gigs such as this until September. Then there would be a group evaluation before, perhaps, heading down to winter and perform in the southern U.S.

But 20 years ago Hawkins had hired a 15 year old roadie named Robbie Robertson, a roadie who went on to become lead guitarist in the group which eventually left Hawkins and joined Bob Dylan under the name of The Band. More recently, Robertson became a movie producer, a "Hollywood mogul" as Hawkins puts it; produced 'The Last Waltz' and engineered the recording contract received by Rompin' Ronnie and the Hawks last week. Hawkins is grateful. "Robbie had to spend a lot of his own time. He had to go to a lot of trouble," the 43 year old band leader explained.

Rompin' Ronnie Hawkins. The name should be familiar to those who remember, say, Conway Twitty, or Jerry Lee Lewis or Carl Perkins.

Or any of the dozen or so bars he has owned over the last two and a half decades, most notably Le Coz D'or in Toronto where, for ten years as he puts it, "I missed the 60's."

Or any of his five gold records: Bo Diddley, Heart, Down in the Alley.

Or groups such as The Band, Full Tilt Boogie, Crowbar, Robbie Lane and the Disciples. They were all Hawks first: Ronnie found and assembled the talent and led it until big money and big names lured it away.

He claims no resentment however. It would have been foolish for his boys to have passed off such opportunities, he explains. He too broke up lesser group to assemble the talent he wanted for his own. He also received offers to join with others but rejected them, preferring instead the independence of his own ensemble. "I had my own way of doing things," he says, noting that "only The Band came closest to doing something in which I would have liked to participate."

Not all his groups were successful though. From Arkansas, originally, he finished a stint in the U.S. army in 1956. While serving he had met four talented black musicians and had joined them to form the Blackhawks.

"The army was liberal." They accepted mixed bands. The outside was not. The Blackhawks tried to make a go of it in Texas and Oklahoma. Often they were hired by band owners who changed their minds after a few drinks. "There was trouble after we got in," says Ronnie. "Gun battles, knife battles, razor battles. Our whole car got shot up."

After a year and a half, the only time in Hawkins' career during which he had trouble finding to work, the Blackhawks decided to split up. Since then they are almost the only musicians he could not keep track of. They are also among the finest he knew.

But, he adds, "times have changed, finally. We could play in those places good now." He gives a lot of the credit to the popular music of the last two decades and to musicians such as Woody Guthrie, Bob Dylan, Pete Seeger, Burl Ives. "All of them were writing about changes. It all helped," he said.

"You always have to imitate. Before you can originate. But never try to duplicate."

These are not the lyrics to a song though perhaps that is a suggestion, but a part of Ronnie Hawkins' philosophy. "There ain't nothing that ain't been done before," he says. Everything is taken somewhat from something else. Even the Beatles copied from the great master.

Success in the popular music business has a lot to do with luck he added. Those who succeed are those who get the opportunities and the money to back them.

Does that mean that there are Beatles and Dylans walking around, never to be discovered? "In Belleville" says Ronnie, Wednesday night he introduced a local friend who came to watch the show as an example. As good a guitarist as he has seen but too discouraged. After ten years playing bars he finally got a job driving trucks, is happy with it and would never go back.

On the other hand, the Beatles, who had no good fortune to find a "unit" in which they worked well, are not in Hawkins eyes, great musicians. This is with the exception of McCartney, "the only one qualified to play in a group I have."

"Tonight," he said Wednesday in Belleville, you are going to hear one of the best rockabilly bands in the world." Rockabilly is the style he began with, back in 1952, a cross between Blues and Rock and Roll. "Changes come and go, but we play the same." Jerry Lee Lewis played Rockabilly, so did Carl Perkins, and Conway Twitty. And if you could have asked Elvis Presley what his favorite style was, Hawkins is sure that that would have been it.

On piano is Stan Szelest, 36, "the best rock and roll piano player you've heard in your life." Harpmaster and singer King Biscuit Boy is "as good as any white harmonica player in the world." Both have spent about 20 years on their crafts. Gary Oacridge 35, has spent 18 years behind the drums.

The youngsters in the group are fiddle and slide guitarist (Cocaine) Carl Mathers, 24, and guitarists Robert Johnston, 25, and Jack de Keyzer, 22.

Hawkins himself sings a part of the tune and "presides" during the rest, rocking gently from foot to foot. No back flips or painted faces or lipstick or smoke bombs for him. "If you can play good enough, you can keep their attention," he says. "You don't have to do anything but play."

"Everybody get drunk and be somebody," he announces, and then the music starts. The dance floor is very well attended. The crowd is both old and young and the steps vary widely. Hawkins has already informed them that they will get no 'John Revolting,' meaning disco and from the enthusiasm one gets the feeling that many people prefer old fashioned rock and roll anyway.

Hawkins, though sometimes labelled as such, does not consider himself a Canadian musician. He has been touring Canada however since 1957 when he first came on the recommendation of a friend. Expecting Eskimos, Indians and the RCMP he instead found enthusiastic audiences and a lot of fine musicians to hire. Only one member of the Band, Levon Helm, was not Canadian and a great many others he took on over the years were as well. Gordon Lightfoot, who Hawkins considers Canada's top popular musician, had his first song to reach top ten in the rating recorded by the Hawks. Hawkins has homes in Toronto, his native Arkansas, and in Peterborough where his wife and three children are now living.

In spite of a role two years ago, in Bob Dylan's four and a half hour autobiographical epic, Renaldo and Clara and various stadium tours through the years, "My life has been the bars. We never hit the big, big time." But, "the bars have been good to me. Lots of groups sure hate them but that is where the common people to and I still like the common people."

Of course, there is still the dream though, the dream that was finally realized Thursday evening. "We were dreaming yesterday of exactly what we got today," he said. This is the big, big time. It's as if we were Fleetwood Mac, Pre Elvis Presley or Bob Dylan. If we don't make it now, we're to blame."

Rompin' Ronnie Hawkins: after years of bars, finally making it to the top? A million dollar recording contract says it might be coming true.

Ronnie Signs Million Dollar Contract

Rompin' Ronnie Hawkins received a phone call from Hollywood last Thursday evening offering him one of the largest recording contracts of his career.

The call reached the 43 year old veteran rock band leader in his hotel room at the Belleville four seasons. He and his six man group, The Hawks, had been playing in the disco there since Monday.

It was, said Hawkins, "one of the greatest recording contracts I've ever seen. Well into the million dollar bracket, guaranteed."

He will not specify the exact amount, nor the recording company which offered the contract until after the actual signing July 26 or 27 in California. But he did say that he and the group will be spending the next 90 days there producing a record. To follow is a promotional world tour, probably first to Europe where 50's style boogie beat rock and roll is currently very popular.

Hawkins is a native of Arkansas but has spent much of the last 21 years performing and running night clubs in Canada. "This is the big, big time," he said of the offer.

The guys in the band were so happy, "I had to keep two of them from jumping through the roof."

Cloud Seeding Completed

THUNDER BAY - A four week experiment to study the potential of cloud seeding as an aid to fighting forest fires was concluded as scheduled on July 14th. The experiment began in northern Ontario on June 19th, and was undertaken jointly by Environment Canada's Atmospheric Environment Service and the National Research Council. It was a continuation of similar research carried out last year, also based at Thunder Bay.

Airborne measurements undertaken in this research program have shown that an induced shower can yield between 5 - 12 million litres of water in a period of 20 minutes. A Canso water bomber carries about 3,600 litres of water.

The objective of the research is to determine whether rain can indeed be induced artificially. The experiment involves observing the physical changes which occur within a cloud following seeding. A typical target for the experiment is a cumuliform cloud about five km in diameter by three km deep.

Observations of the particles inside the cloud are made by sophisticated instruments on board a Twin Otter aircraft flying about 300 metres below cloud top. If ice crystals are not found, the cloud is seeded by a T-33 aircraft using 350 grams of silver iodide. Following seeding, the Twin Otter again enters the cloud to measure any changes in the composition of cloud particles.

When appropriate conditions prevail, the minute silver iodide particles cause some of the cloud droplets to freeze. The resulting ice crystals grow to form snow pellets then melt, falling as rain. The first rain reaches ground about 30 minutes after

diagnostic service

Homeowners as well as the agricultural industry can now get answers to their questions and problems from a new pest diagnostic and services clinic at the University of Guelph. The clinic is offered with the support of funds provided through the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

The clinic will deal with questions relating to the identifications and control of pests, the identification of plants, and the many problems encountered by horticulturists and homeowners in growing plants.

For many years, such problems have been brought to the University of Guelph, and referred to faculty members in several departments for answers. Among those who responded to such queries were the late Prof. J.C. Taylor, and Professors H. Goble and C.B. Kelly, who recently retired from their faculty positions.

Modern demands for updated information on pesticides, and a steadily growing number of all inquiries now require a more co-ordinated system, with specimens for identification and other enquiries directed to a central location. The new clinic achieves this, and will provide a more prompt and better service to the public.

The clinic will be staffed, initially, with a diagnostician, R.T. Wukasch, assisted by both Prof. Goble and Prof. Kelly on a part time basis. Other specialists at the University of Guelph and elsewhere will also act as consultants so that the clinic can serve a broad function to the agricultural industry, ancillary industries and, the general public.

"Biomass" could become an important word in our vocabulary

The term biomass has crept into our energy vocabulary in recent times and if current interest is any indication it will find a permanent home in the dictionaries of the future.

Energy derived from wood or other forms of biomass offer a significant alternative to traditional fuels as resources diminish. It is estimated, for example, that some 2,000,000 Canadian homes now use wood as their primary heat source. That does not include the use of fireplaces, which are highly inefficient.

But what is included in the term biomass?

It is chemical energy derived from the sun and stored in plants and animals. It can be converted to useable fuels, electricity or heat. It is the wastes from crops, livestock, municipalities and forests. Or it need not be waste at all. Crops of trees, kelp, algae or corn can be grown specifically for the purpose of providing energy.

The main attraction of such energy forms is that they are renewable, unlike petroleum, coal, gas and uranium which face eventual depletion.

The importance of this partially tapped energy resource is reflected in the federal government's recent announcement of development funding for biomass technology.

Over the next seven years a total of $33 million will be made available to help develop the new technology. This will consist of $143 million to assist the forest industry in the purchase of new equipment to make fuller use of wood waste; loan guarantees in the amount of $150 million to broaden the use of biomass in electrical generation; and, approximately $40 million in expanded research and development and the demonstration of innovative techniques.

The government's thinking in this allocation follows its stated strategy for energy self-reliance in which fuel substitution is a major element.

Canada's vast forest areas have always been an economic mainstay. Now, as attention is focussed on biomass energy, a return to wood as a fuel promises to benefit the forest industry to an even greater extent if the technology is developed soon.

Despite the fact that the forest industry wastes one third of the wood it cuts, it still produces 3.5 per cent of the country's primary energy by burning waste. This is more than is generated by nuclear reactors. Scientists at the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources forecast a doubling of the wood-fuelled energy. This would make the industry, now the country's biggest single consumer of petroleum products, more than self-sufficient in energy by 1985. It could build a new sideline for certain companies in supplying electricity and heat to nearby communities.

The demand of this huge industry for energy coupled with a response to the challenge to increase the use of wood fuel is expected to breed an advanced technology which will put Canada in the forefront of biomass technology.

The federal government is working with the provinces to encourage and refine the technology and is funding research and a development which will speed the switch to increased wood-fuelled processing operations. A second phase of the program will tackle the current waste and encourage use of the whole tree - limbs, leaves and all.

This material could find its way into a revived chemical industry with interesting long-range energy features.

As the world nervously enters the twilight of the petroleum age, it is perhaps ironic that lumbering, which spurred Canada's growth during the last century is being called upon once more to lead us into the next.

Guelph will offer correspondence diploma

A new opportunity for education in agriculture, the Ontario Diploma in Agriculture by correspondence, will be offered by the University of Guelph beginning in October. The new diploma program will be sponsored by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food and is offered by the Office of Continuing Education, University of Guelph.

The program will be especially useful to farmers and to people employed in agriculturally related jobs who want to upgrade their education, but cannot take time away for full time study.

The credits required for the diploma include a number of core subjects and a larger number of optional courses, thus allowing the student to specialize in an area of particular interest. The three main areas of emphasis will be animal production, crop production, and general agriculture. An additional requirement for completion of the diploma is a minimum of 12 months practical agricultural experience.

The Diplomas in Agriculture program will be offered to the public through the Independent Study Section of the University of Guelph's Office of Continuing Education, which already has considerable experience in such programs.

The Ontario Diploma in Horticulture program operates on a similar basis, and for the past 18 years has offered those involved in the horticultural industry opportunity for further study. Over 300 graduates have successfully completed the course of study and received the Ontario Diploma in Horticulture.

For some years, several individual courses in agriculture have also been offered by correspondence and have been widely accepted. Most of these courses will be continued in the curriculum of the Diploma in Agriculture, along with many new ones to complete the required schedule of studies.

Recently, the Independent Study program at the University of Guelph introduced a new concept known as Creative Self Learning. This offers the correspondence student special courses of study that include sound tape cassettes and

ISSUES IN THE LAW

By Andre Philpot, Barrister and Solicitor

Every Tuesday morning just east of the four corner, all the parking spots, except one, on Madoc Main Street, slowly fill up.

At first the spaces are taken by police cruiser for the officers arriving to open the doors. Then the court officials drift in, and usually, just before 10 a.m., the public arrives whether by choice or by summons. By 9:55 a.m., one space, directly in front of the path to the main door, remains marked with a no parking sign, reserved for the Judge.

People hang around the front door and corridor of the old Armouries, now the Kiwanis Centre. To get to the court, they follow arrows to the right, to the right again and up the stairs, and then to the left, and down a corridor to the court room door. A lot of people hang around the last corridor avoiding going inside until absolutely necessary.

Inside police, lawyers, clerks, witnesses, complainants and the curious await the start of proceedings.

The room is overwhelmingly plain; there is nothing - not a thing - memorable about it. Everyone sits on wooden and metal school-type stacking chairs. The Crown Attorney and lawyer sit at a stretch of long plain wooden tables facing the judge.

The judge, clerk and court reporter sit behind simple plywood high front desk with his Honour elevated about six inches above the crowd on a small wooden platform. Behind him hangs an outdated picture of the Queen.

The walls must be painted, but now three hours after I have left, it is impossible to remember what colour.

In one back corner, a fire door leads to a fire escape. In the summer the door is opened a lot to keep the air moving in the drab little court-room. It is an alternative to a rather boisterous window-fitted air conditioner. In the winter a radiator keeps things somewhere near, but usually on one side or the other, of an appropriate temperature.

There is nothing terribly wrong with the place but somehow the surroundings lack the air of dignity most people expect to find in a room where people's crises are adjudicated and their lives changed.

It's no worse than other small town courts facilities, but it is still far from special. In Bancroft, they use the church hall basement; in Kaladar something about the size of a large washroom stuck onto the side of the police station; in Campbellford, with unconscious humour, they use the Odd Fellow's Hall.

Somehow the administration of justice in small town Ontario has the air of a temporary affair. It seems as if someone in Toronto has decided to "make do" with the facilities in the expectation that they will soon not be needed when we all see the error of our ways. Everything could be packed up and moved out in less than an hour and there would hardly be a sign to show that what was left was once a courtroom.

At any rate it is to this place that the wayward are summoned. The "docket" lists perhaps forty accused persons charged with a total of perhaps 100 offences.

A lot of the charges appear to be, and in part are, totally redundant. A man charged with impaired is charged also with failing the breath test. One or the other is withdrawn automatically when a guilty plea is made.

The list is longer than it is varied - impaired driving, careless driving, impaired driving, driving while under suspension, impaired driving again, assault, break and enter, and so on. You can account for over one half of the charges by one work - "drinking". If you add "driving" and "theft" you probably summarized 90% of them.

Those charged run the gambit from petrified to surly. Some are visibly shaken by the mere fact of being there - others really appear not to care less. Some cut their hair and wear a tie. Among the others I have seen a person charged with a drug offence appear in a dirty T-shirt emblazoned with a Marijuana Leaf.

A lot of people just want to plead guilty, take their medicine and get out. A lot plead guilty and then come perilously close to denying it all when they or their lawyer make their pitch for clemency. "Behind every drunk is a story," one Crown Attorney likes to comment.

Between the guilty pleas and the adjournments, the best part of the morning slips away. There is perhaps time for hearing one trial before lunch and maybe three afternoons.

The trials in Provincial Court are for the most part brief. The Crown present the facts, and the accused either ignores or denies them. If he denies them he is wise to do so briefly, and to be to the point. A long story is not often good nor is an irrelevant rambling explanation likely to lighten the day for the judge and officials who, after all, like the accused, there not just by choice.

If everyone is lucky, the court closes by three o'clock. A little bookkeeping is done - people are told where and when to send fines and the place is swiftly abandoned for another week. The administration of criminal justice is over for another week.

The cars leave and until next Tuesday there is all the parking space in the world in that part of the main street of Madoc.

Reminiscences and Reflections

by Naomi Wakan

with Mary her father's joy in making beautiful artifacts and the joy of taking time to observe and enquire.

The whole family was always interested in nature, and her Aunt was a herbalist. Home remedies used when Marjory was young included hot catnip tea for growing pains and an infusion of the inner bark of the wild black cherry tree for loss of appetite. Her father always kept a limb of the tree in the house. He used to tell her that she should always peel it down otherwise the medicine would come up. This kind of knowledge comes from empirical observation and Marjory, herself would never recommend eating any wild food that she had not tried. Of course in those years senna tea was used as a laxative. For cold - camphorated oil, ginger tea and milk, mustard plaster and mustard foot-bath, honey and lemon juice; surely a cold could not stand up to such an assault. Bone-set was used for pneumonia and the cleaned and grated root of sweet flag for kidney trouble.

Other wild foods Marjory uses at her home in Green Acres, either as pot-herbs or as a tea are camomile, milk weed (shoots and pods) curled dock, hot clover, plantain, dandelion, stinging nettle and of course lamb's quarters. Marjory Scrivener uses Bouncing Bet to wash her fine woollens. She recommended red clover and comfrey, which when dried both make fine teas. For poison ivy, Marjory uses jewel weed. This is a tall plant with orange flowers that looks like a pendant. Several of her neighbours now keep a solution of it in the freezer, as it doesn't maintain its virtue in the fridge.

Marjory's home remedies and receipts are from considerate thrift envelopes re-cycled because she remembers the trees they came from. Her mother and Marjory likewise can turn to natural sources for tasty meals. Her mother used to say, "A good cook doesn't have a grocery store behind her". For beauty aids, ordinary

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd., Elmina, Ont. N3B 2C7

Catching up on the correspondence: A letter from Goderich in favor of the recent column on Quebec: "Keep up the good work."

Another letter from Arnprior: "What do you mean, making reference to tanks along the Ottawa River between Ontario and Quebec? It's stupid rednecks like you who will ruin this country."

A reader in Cobden writes: "Thank you for saying a few things in print that I have felt like saying for many months."

So much for Rene Levesque. It is heartening to learn, though, that the Davis government is taking the labor discrimination issue to the highest court of the land. Others felt that some action had to be taken against Quebec in this instance.

From Dresden comes a letter agreeing with my comments on regional government but another from New Hamburg suggesting I probably still wear high-button shoes and celluloid collars: "You're so old-fashioned you probably still drive a horse and buggy."

I don't have a buggy but I sure love to saddle and ride my horse four or five times a week.

A Brighton reader comments: "I recall reading a column of yours a few years ago talking about the connections that a huge conglomerate such as George Weston Ltd. or the Argus Corporation must have. It would appear that their ability to manipulate the marketplace is at last being recognized. Maybe we will have a full-scale Royal commission!"

Maybe. But the recommendations are likely to get pigeonholed with all other Royal commission suggestions.

A beef farmer in the Drayton area suggests I should comment on the formation of a beef marketing board now that the price of beef is high again. I have baited the beef boys once too often. I'm afraid a couple of beef farmers near Elmina where I live will not even speak to me.

A farmer near Stratford happily extolled the virtues of the steam locomotive after reading a recent column. He said the town of Stratford almost died when the railway pulled out. My column on trains brought back many memories, he said. That same column brought letters from Marmora, Seaford, Mitchell, Gananoque and Midland.

And the article on getting a Saturday cent brought a charming note from a woman in Eganville. She said she can remember those Saturday cents clearly. She used to go to the corner store with her younger sister and the two of them would stand in front of the candy counter for as long as half an hour deciding what to get for their money in the Dirty Thirties of the Depression.

One of the most charming letters came from a reader at RR 3, Goderich, who loved the column on the return of robins to our lazy acres. Enclosed was a poem by Anne Livingstone entitled Canada Geese and the poem was dedicated to me.

A lovely gesture.

I have had many pats and many pans in more than 20 years as a journalist. Somewhere in my trunk of memories is a statuette about eight inches high. It consists of the rear end of a horse. That's all, just the rear end.

"You are a..." says the engraved plate on the base of the statuette.

It was given to me as a booby prize in an amateur contest back in the days when I thought I could sing.

I am happy to say that soon after I received it, I quit singing. My friends — the few I have — and my wife, too, are happy I quit singing in public.

I certainly appreciate the poem much more than I appreciate the statue of a horse's rear end.

Many thanks to all who filled the summer mailbag.

Line Fences Act To Be Changed After 100 years; government looks for public input

TORONTO - W. Darcy McKeough, Treasurer of Ontario, wants to hear from all residents of Ontario interested in the proposed 1978 Line Fences Act.

The Act was introduced by Mr. McKeough, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs, in June.

"The Government looks forward to receiving and discussing comments and recommendations for changes to this Bill over the summer months, and to consideration by the Legislature in the Fall," said Mr. McKeough.

The major reason for the new act is the need to provide a simpler and quicker method for settling fencing disputes in both rural and urban areas.

A line fence is a legal term which applies, to a fence built on a boundary line between two properties.

The proposed act, if passed, will replace the current Line Fences Act which has been in existence since 1913. However, the whole issue of line fences and the resolution of disputes dates back even further.

By an Act passed in 1793 in the second session of the first provincial parliament of Upper Canada which met at Niagara, provision was made for the appointment of not less than two or more than six persons to serve the office of Fence Viewers in each parish, township, or place. Acts were subsequently passed in 1834, 1845, 1859, 1868, and 1874 respecting line fences with the 1913 act really reenacting the 1874 legislation. Since then, there have been only minor amendments.

Also, in addition to the methods in the current act, it is proposed that if the municipal council passes by-law, one owner may collect the funds owed by the defaulting owner, from the municipal treasurer. The municipality will then collect the amount from the defaulting owner as taxes with interest.

Mr. McKeough said "the proposed revisions are necessary in order to deal with present-day circumstances."

Anyone interested in receiving a copy of Mr. McKeough's statement may contact: Local Government Organization Branch, Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs, 4th floor, Frost Bldg. North, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1Y7. (416) 965-6934.

A limited number of copies of the proposed bill are also available.

Cloud Seeding Experiment

the release of silver iodide. This summer a total of 10 experiments were carried out on individual clouds. Five were control experiments with no silver iodide released. The data collected during these control experiments will assist researchers in their analyses by indicating what physical changes occur in typical unseeded clouds.

A total of five clouds were seeded with silver iodide. Three of these clouds dissipated rapidly and no ice crystals or rain were detected following seeding. One cloud did show a marked increase in ice crystal content but dissipated shortly thereafter. A fifth seeded cloud produced rainfall over a path about 5 x 15 km. It is estimated that rain at ground level totalled less than two millimetres.

All 10 cloud experiments were carried out within an area bounded by Dryden, Pickle Lake, Nakina, Marathon and Thunder Bay. No severe weather phenomena such as lightning, hail or strong winds were associated with any of the clouds seeded. Generally weather and precipitation patterns across northern Ontario have not been affected by these rain-making research experiments.
